“Symbols and Signs and other Related Matters Pertaining to and in Relationship to the Etheric, the Astral, the Planetary and Physical Planes and the Bodies Relevant to them including the Purely Psychological.” - I

Dear Brothers, Sisters and Partners,

Greetings: It is for you, The 13, to know much and to teach much. See to it.

These intimate truths are not for the eyes and ears of those who do not “see” or “hear” even though they have healthy eyes and ears. They are strictly directed to those of The Order, my Partner “JN,” and, Dh Sr., myself, those then, who have been acquainted with the ideas, ideals, facts, and realities of the Spiritual teachings of the Message of I Paul and the teachings of The Order of Thirteen.

What will be given here to The 13 could be cited as “the Secrets of the Ancients” but in reality they are much, much more, for it will be, if I may take the liberty of stating it so, the Wisdom, the Knowledge, the Understanding, the Intelligence and the Power of the Love and Truth of Spirit and True Christian Spiritualism of All Ages.

Much, herein, that at first will appear vague will later become clear and understandable to you and to those who you will eventually feel the strong sense of necessity to share these truths with.

Symbols and signs, not only in the theosophical world, but in the profane world also, often give the impression of something arbitrary that only “signifies” something. This is not always correct. You should know, for example, that the various Planets of the Universe, those we are aware of, as well as those we are not at the present time aware of, are indicated by signs. A familiar sign in theosophical allegories is the so-called Pentagram, a five-pointed object or star - often an occult symbol. Furthermore, you should be aware also that in various cults, sects, and religions Light is mentioned in the sense of Wisdom and of Spiritual clarity. The Message proper gives you a much broader and clearer view of all the things the word Light signifies. If you should now ask the meaning of such things, you could read or hear that it means “this or that” - a triangle, for example, would mean in some circles, the higher trinity, among other things. Frequently, also, in theosophical writings, myths and legends are interpreted - they are said to “mean something.” To reach behind the sense, behind the being of this meaning, to recognize the reality of such symbols and signs will be my task as Spirit Guide to the Order, while your task will be to come to a complete Understanding of what is being given to you.

Let us make this a bit clearer by giving you an example using the Pentagram. Much abstruse thinking has been spent on it - this is not the concern of Spiritualism. A True Christian Spiritualist needs only a fundamental grasp of it and the occult. In order to do this, we must first cite seven of the fundamental parts that make up the Human Body, or being, and to state that it is the etheric "body," above all, that is most relevant in this consideration. After all, this one "body" stands above all others, it is our greatest natural resource and the basis, in fact, the Alpha and Omega of all of our source material and the infallible guarantee of our faith and our future. We know that the "etheric body" belongs to the Eighth sphere of the Universe - never seen by the human eye yet always "seen." To fully perceive it Spiritually, and at times, clairvoyantly, certain exercises are required. Thus, it becomes evident, that this "body's" form and structure never appears as a nebulous formation, in fact, it never appears in any form, yet in All. No one knows what it is created of, or composed of, but we do know their various etheric components, for we have experienced them. We know also that it is the Architect, the Creator of the Physical Body. Just as steam is formed out of water, so has the human physical body been fashioned out of the etheric, which like the ocean, is flooded through by many currents running in all directions - among them are five main currents. They form what is called a Pentagram.

Every human has these five currents established in them, through, and by, the "Etheric Body." You must not suppose, however, that everything pertaining to the etheric "body" is only within, because when a person moves or thinks; for instance, the currents actually go through the ether.

To the Occult these five currents are the human pentagram, known in some circles or sects, as Brain, Blood, Bone, Muscle and Tissue.

We know them for what they really are - Mind, Wind, Fire, Water and Spirit.

From these very brief considerations (we will be personally teaching all this to the Order soon) one may see how matters stand with the real meaning of a symbol, such as the Pentagram. All the Signs and Symbols that we encounter in Christian Spiritualism are designed to direct us to such Realities, and, what is more important is the fact that in due course one Receives indications in the Spiritual use of such symbols, signs, and so forth. They, then, are the means towards reaching cogitation and transcendence levels. No one who ponders such symbols as the Five main currents deeply will be unsuccessful, if only they do so with Patience and in tandem with the directions of the Message of I Paul. One must immerse themselves in this Pentagram, as it were - and find the five currents of the etheric "body." There is no sense in thinking out contrived, arbitrary meanings for these Symbols and Signs. One must place them before one's Inner-Eye - then they will lead to the Spiritual solution, which is esoteric in its nature. One places such things before the inner eye through the processes of meditation, contemplation, cogitation and the trance states, including the Trance Sleep states.

This is the case not only with what can be found in the confines of the Message of I Paul and in theosophy, but also with the symbols, signs, and esotericisms contained in Ancient documents as well as some of those religious and gnostic writings that are based on or had their "birthings," from True Spiritualism.

Whenever a True Christian Spiritualist, an Adept, speaks of the LIGHT, and thereby points to the Wisdom and Power of LIFE, and of Life, he does not do so because he thinks it to be an ingenious idea or picture. He, or she, bases their thinking on facts and Knowledge received, spiritually. Hence, it is not important for such a one to be ingenious but truthful. As a Spiritualist one must give up lawless and senseless thinking and wishing - one must not draw arbitrary conclusions and pass Judgments. Step by step we must follow in the footsteps of Jesus and with the help of our Spiritual Message we must develop correct, undistorted Thinking and Common Sense. This image of "All Light," then, has a deep significance or, rather, it is a Spiritual Fact.

In order to recognize this, let us go directly to the human being here on W-303 and its makeup.

The Astral Body is considered by the theosophic as the third member of man. It is the bearer of joy and sorrow, happiness and suffering, and a source of comfort to the true-self or the entrapped spirit within. The occultist believes that man and animal have astral bodies and that plants do not. The Astral "body" is of a substance supposedly existing at a level just beyond the human perception (Theosophy and the Occult).

This Astral "body," this "something," this substance, is not a body at all but light waves which permeate the ether and is one of the keys to receiving and sending thoughts, telepathy, E.S.P. and clairvoyance, among other phenomena of which we shall relate to later on.

The Physical Body has a long history of development behind it that has come about as the result of four planetary embodiments. These four are East, North, South, and finally West, 303's All, in ALL.

Regardless of what Genesis 1:1 states, God, or LIFE then, Created the Universe and the Earths or Heavenly Bodies. And as that is a Truth, so is it also a Truth that the four earths were formed and structured but all were void of all Higher Life. At that time mankind did not exist in his present forms, only the potential was there on East 303 which became the first inhabited earth by life and then Life, mankind then, similar to man-woman of W-303, yet distinctive in their own way, some billions of years ago. This, then, was the beginning of man-woman as we know them today. From that auspicious beginning the Four Forms and Structures of mankinds were set, and although similar, they are also distinctive in their own right. Beginning in the East, then to the North, the South and finally, to the West came Man and Woman. They will be cited herein for purposes of identification as follows:

The Etheric Man.

The Astral Man.

The Planetary Man.

The Physical Man.

It needs be understood that there is no involvement of any Darwinian evolution implied nor involved here. The Astral did evolve from the Etheric, and so forth. Only involution is of our concern and interest here.

All Four of these “Species of Mankind” are caught up in the Realm of Divine Consciousness - the gateway to Ultimate Perfection. This is an integral part of the System that Always Prevails. The Four Places of man and woman kinds where the Laws always Remain Constant.

The Four also comprise the Realm of the thought of All Thoughts, the Thought of LIGHT above and beyond all the Spiritual Planes from the Incarnate Low to, but not at, the height of the LIGHT of ALL LIFE, “The Ultimate Perfection of the ALL in ALL.”

Through the Grace of LIFE, the Architect and the Love of LIGHT, the builder, the Four Genuses of man-woman kinds came into being. This involution and involving is what we here call or cite as Creation. A Creation of such an Intricate Design of Forms and Structures, that is so overwhelmingly perfect it is unfathomable and totally incomprehensible to man-woman kinds everywhere - only the Spirit can know it.

How very true it is, that man was Perfectly Created but not Created Perfect, for if he-she had been, what reason for Creation? That's a very searching question and one that has never been completely or satisfactorily answered up to the present day.

For who is man-woman? What are they? Where are they? When are they? Why are they? And, finally, How are they?

We already have had answered for us some of these questions, and we shall answer them all as we progress, so pay attention.

Whenever "we" speak of healing you must of course always keep in mind that "Healing" is not just a physical matter but more, even a Spiritual matter. You must thoroughly understand that the physical body exists here as the school room from which the True-Self is to graduate up through and out of the darkness to the Light. And the Message of I Paul, as you know, is the Text-Book of that school, a primer for the "Book of Life," of which, everything opposite to it, constitutes the Books of Death or the ways to the deep Darkness.

Now, contrariwise to the Christian religion belief, preaching, and teaching, God, Christ and the Holy Ghost or Holy Spirit are not real Persons. They are Spirits and, furthermore they are not three Spirits but two separate and distinct Spirits, since God, LIFE, then IS the Supreme Spirit or the Holy Spirit or, if you like, the Supreme LIFE, the Holy LIFE. Christ was the “First Born,” i.e. First Living Being Created by LIFE, as the LIGHT.

We can say, then, physically, esoterically, and Spiritually, that the first man-woman were Created Living Beings and the “second” man-woman were “Created,” i.e. “Blessed as Living Spirits” with the spirit form and structural attributes necessary to inhabit the Kingdom of God through the process of “spirit evolution” (we presume this Change, following the “Happening of The Cross” to be in line with God’s Prerogative of Omnipotence and/or the Supreme Spirit’s ineffable Universal Plan of Creation, Revelation, and Change). So, we humans are soulless vessels and as persons, consist of body, mind, spirit. Only the spirit can enter the Kingdom of LIFE and it can only begin to do this when the Lower mind of man-woman is United with the Higher mind of the spirit as one mind.

In the Christian religion man-woman consist of physical body and soul. At death the earthly physical and carnal body returns to the Earth (dust to dust). The soul ceases to exist (see Smith's bible dictionary on soul) and the long wait for a Physical Body Resurrection begins. This is their faith, although the Catholics have a different view which involves the soul being sent to hell, purgatory, or lying in limbo, while awaiting the Resurrection and Judgement.

In Christian Spiritualism man-woman consist of body-mind-spirit (not soul). The body being the physical-material part of man-woman. The lower mind of the physical body is the intellect, knowledge, senses, emotions, etc. of man-woman. The spirit, the actual True-Self is Conscience and the higher mind of man-woman. These three, body-mind-spirit, constitute our wholeness as a man or woman and our spirits constitute our divinity and our immortality - our True-Self immortality. The spirit enters the human body at birth and exits at death, with the lower and higher minds coming together as one mind, a compounding, then, of both the human and the spirit attributes, united in a quest for the Kingdom of Eternal Life and the Soul. This is our faith in its fullest measure. Flesh and Blood cannot enter the Kingdom of God and there simply is no resurrection of a dead physical-material vessel, more commonly known as the Human Body.

Since the Free-Will, for all practical spiritual-physical purposes died on the Cross, man-woman ignored the Spirit Gift of the Mind of Christ, the Will of God, as their own will, the Will the Wills above all wills for the very Well-Being of All, and instead man-woman embraced an illusion called “self” which became, in effect, a religion in itself in the guise of “self-worship.” In embracing this “self,” man-woman abandoned their True-Self which became a virtual prisoner “within,” locked in constant combat against this illusionary “self” for supremacy of the lower mind and control of the carnal physical vessel.

The goal of the True-Self is to return to the Soul it has been living in exile from, to be reunited, then, with the All in the Soul-dom of LIFE through the guidance of LIGHT up to the Happening of the All in All. This too is Christian Spiritual Faith.

This “Happening,” as I interpret it, will not occur until the Four species of mankind and their earths come together in Love and Truth and Unity and Peace in the New World.

These four species of Life are also “Recognized” as,

The Life Man-Woman.

The Light Man-Woman.

The Cosmos Man-Woman.

The Vessel Man-Woman.

These, then, are the “True Bodies” of the Universe of LIFE, known as Life. The Earths, stars, etc. are Space Bodies - more commonly known as terrestrial Bodies - with some supporting one or more forms of life. These, collectively, constitute what we would cite as the Fourth Dimension of time and space.

The Four Earths are the quadruplicates of this Fourth Dimension which must be United interstellarly and out of their present galaxies, designated East, North, South and West on the psychical “compass” of the present Universe. This “coming together” is the Agōn of Life and LIGHT - The Man-Woman Life of W-303 with the other 303's - the Vessel Man of the Seven Points which are Mind, Wind, Water, Fire, spirit, darkness, and light - and time has nothing to do with any one of these Seven Points.

We use the term time only to make things here more uniform or regulated and a little easier or simpler to understand. On this Earth only are we captives of time. And the great majority of people here are probably quite unaware that time is but another illusion. Yet, we have very cleverly designed many ways to “keep” this illusionary - invented time and utilizing it to maintain order in our world to some great degree.

Actually, there are only three “natural” ways to measure time as we have come to know and use it here on W-303. And actually, these three ways are not time but energy and action at work in space, as we call it and see it and feel it. They are as follows:

1. The earth completely rotates on its axis once every “day.”
2. The moon revolves around the earth once every “month.”
3. The earth revolves around the Sun once a “year.”

From these three realities we invented such things as the Calendar and the Clock, and so forth that relate to what we cite as time.

And then we here have other illusions that are peculiar to just us, vessel man and woman, such as “self” which I need not belabor here. If you do not understand this “self-winding” illusionary nemesis by now I doubt you ever will.

When we speak of time we need to also speak of space and that’s what the Universe is - Space and all that that Space contains.

The Planetary or Cosmos Man-Woman are also known as “the Travelers” and the source of what is commonly cited here on W-303 as Unidentified Flying Objects. These are the so-called “Bird People” or “sky-gods” of the Ancients - the “Keepers” of the Well, the Lumerians and the explorers of Space.

These Lumerians were the first specie of man-woman to set foot upon this earth and to establish its first colony. They came from the South of the 303's.

The following shows how some of their history has survived down through the ages and the faiths of many people, such as the American Indian, some people of India, the Incas, the Maya, the Persians, Babylonians, Sumerians, the Egyptians and others.

The early Anglo-Saxon kings of England who founded such kingdoms as Mercia, Anglia, Sussex, Wessex, and Essex laid claim to a divine descent. Throughout the ages kings and rulers of many lands have made the same claims. The question is why - what is the basis for this claim of divine descent? Even the last German Kaiser and the Stuarts in England presumed to rule by Divine Right, which is simply the survival of the divine descent doctrine. Our aim here is to study this relationship between men and women rulers and Spirits and “gods” which is a fundamental problem of the change from Spiritualism to the most Ancient religions.

It does not require a lot of searching to understand that some of the claims of “divine descent” have come from men and women who simply made themselves into “gods” or “goddesses” by calling themselves as such. Instances of this can be cited in our day and age, in such places as Oceania and Tibet, where the Dali Lama and the Tashai Lama reside. (I also, in another communication gave you one Old Testament account in the Book of Ezekiel of a human “god”). Yet, in spite of the “self”-made divines of our history, there is evidence in many traditions, faiths, sagas, myths, and so forth some hints and clues that seem to imply that a divine descent had merit, a concept that simply cannot be traced to an individual or individuals native to this Earth.

The Change of meaning acquired by words in the course of time makes it difficult, and sometimes impossible, to understand exactly what a given term or metaphor stood for in the beginning. The word “god” is a case in point. Members of Christian Communities, brought up to believe in a God, about whom generations have thought long and earnestly, can only with difficulty disengage themselves from the tangle of symbolism that has entwined itself around this word. It is hard to get back to the original mode of thought of early peoples, when they first began to develop their very own brand of religion in opposition to the prevailing faith of Spiritualism. It may seem ridiculous to many for a person to say that he or she is divine yet apparently such people as Ezekiel did not think it preposterous at all. Nor would the Ancient Egyptians, who regarded their king as divine, find the claim absurd. The realization of the existence of earthly “gods” shows that we must adjust our ideas concerning the godhead, and approach the concept of divine descent by determining its meaning with minds divested, as far as possible, of any preconceived ideas.

How many “Christians” understand The Trinity and can clearly and precisely explain it and teach it to others? I doubt there is even one person who can do this perfectly. Yet, this religious Trinity has much to do with the beliefs that we are dealing with here about “divine descent.”

Let me give you an example of a religious Christian attempting to explain the Trinity to a non-Religious Spiritual Christian:

Jesuit - You see, God changed himself into a dove, to beget a child upon the wife of a carpenter, and this child was God Himself.

Spiritual - Well then, you have two Gods by actual count - a carpenter and a dove!

Jesuit - Undoubtedly, my friend; but there is a third God, also, who is the Father of those two, and whom we always portray with a majestic beard. This is the god who ordered the dove to beget a child upon the carpenter's wife, of whom was born the carpenter-god. But basically, these three (3) gods are only one. The Father engendered the son before he was in the world, the son was thereupon engendered by the dove, and the dove proceeded from the Father and son. But you can see very clearly that the dove which proceeded, the carpenter who was born of the dove, and the Father who engendered the son of the dove, can be only one God, and that a person who will not believe this story ought to be burned in this world and the next.

Spiritual - (tongue in cheek) - Oh, that is as clear as day. A god born in a stable, almost two thousand years ago, between an ox and an ass, another god in a dovecote, a third god from whom the other two came from and who is not older than they despite his white beard, a virgin mother - nothing can be simpler or more sensible.

That's how one ruins a "simple" theology that fails to distinguish metaphor from fact. The Christian religions' Trinity is just another illusion for men and women to deal with.

Now let us get back to the "divine descent" concept.

There is a widespread belief among peoples of very different stages of culture that gods created the ancestors, and even the lands in which they dwell. The account of the Creation given in the book of Genesis is but one of many such tales. It is similar to certain Babylonian beliefs, which, in their turn, were derived from Sumerian stories of beginnings.

The widespread occurrence of creation stories shows that the "gods" played an important part in the lives of peoples who believe in them. Such beliefs can hardly be the products of mere fantasy, retained for no reason. We may be certain that the tale of the creation of animals, plants and man would not be included in the bible, unless the Israelites believed it served them some vital purpose and affected their welfare.

The relationship between gods and people cannot be explained until the creative activities of gods have been accounted for. Men and Women may claim to be gods - but it hardly seems credible, at first sight, that they can arrogate to themselves the role of Creator. It seems there is more, much more, in the term "god" than the human element! The king of Tyre or of Egypt need not necessarily sum up the godhead.

One way to solve the religious problem of the creative activities of the "gods" is to examine one set of creation sagas or myths, and see what they tell us. The essential elements of creation stories are so similar throughout this world that it is not a matter of much importance which of them we choose for our examination. Hence the one or two that set forth the vital message in its clearest terms can be used to interpret the whole series of narratives. We will first examine one right here at home, the American Pawnee Indian because they have an elaborate narrative that has been recorded in detail.

The Pawnee are a Great Plains Indian who moved out to Nebraska from East of the Mississippi as a result of the coming of the Europeans. The Spaniards introduced the horse, and the Indians adopted horse-riding from them. They found this so useful in buffalo hunting that they moved onto the plains in pursuit of their quarry, and tended to give up agriculture upon which they had once mainly subsisted. This movement took place from the East and the South. From the East came the great Sioux group of tribes. From the South came the Pawnee and their fellows the Wichita, the Caddo, the Arikara, and others. The Pawnee have a tradition that they came up from the southwest, and that at one time they built stone houses. The direction suggests they came from Mexico originally and settled in Louisiana. From there they moved north to the country of the Platte River, then through Missouri, Arkansas, and then on to Nebraska.

This long migration was accompanied by a great destruction of the Pawnee Culture. For instance, they used to make pottery and they were always keen at agriculture, which they must have brought from the South with them. The survival of their creation story through their wanderings, when so much of their culture was sacrificed, therefore shows how important it must have been to them.

The Pawnee tribes of today are pretty well scattered but back about fifty years ago they had settled down into four clans and lived in villages, with each having a Chief, four braves or police, four priests and an indefinite number of medicine men. This organization was (is) simple and probably bears little resemblance to what they originally had. The Pawnee are said by all observers to be a very religious people. They are more addicted to ritual than the rest of the Plains Indians, and have a large number of ceremonials that are performed on definite occasions.

The stories told by the Pawnees fall into two well defined groups. Some are very concerned with gods and supernatural beings who once lived on this earth - these include the creation stories. The others relate to animals - these correspond to the Brer Rabbit tales, in which some animal, such as the rabbit or the coyote, has many adventures, some of them are not very edifying.

The "Brer Rabbit" stories, which are told all over America, are intended to amuse and to illustrate some moral purpose. They are, of course, looked upon as fiction and nothing more.

The creation stories, and other tales of gods and the stories of supernatural beings, differ from the animal stories in that they play a very important part in the lives of the Pawnee. They are their most cherished possessions, and are preserved with the greatest care. They are recited on important ceremonial occasions. The Creation story of the Pawnee claims that in the beginning the world, this Earth, did not exist. There was only a world in the sky and inhabited by the gods. The Supreme Being was Tirawa, the Creator, who worked through his intermediaries, the “sky-gods.”

When Tirawa decided to create terrestrial worlds, he organized them in the sky, and gave the different gods their worlds and stations. He kept with him the four gods of the four quarters of the worlds who were destined to do the actual work of Creation. Tirawa dropped a pebble, a crystal of quartz into a cloud and the space was then filled with water, out of which the four gods produced the worlds and fashioned the lands for men and women to live on. Animals and plants were then created on the earths and all was ready for the arrival of human beings. Here the story switches to this Earth. The first human beings came down to this earth from the Southern Sky. They included a man, the son of the Sun and a woman, the daughter of Bright-Star, an important Pawnee sky-goddess. These two are the ancestors of the Pawnee Chiefs. We are not told how the ordinary people came into being. They, as usual, are taken for granted. It was much more important to remember that the ancestors of the chiefs were taught the ceremonial connected with agriculture, buffalo hunting, and the erecting of stone houses by the sky-beings or bird-people as some of the clans called them.

The Pawnee, in common with other peoples of like culture, have elaborate rites to cause their crops to grow and to enable them to bag buffalo. It is always a mystery to me how students of early civilization can take this fact so calmly they seem to take it for granted that some sort of ceremonial was inevitable and deemed necessary by "savages" for the proper practice of agriculture. But I can see no valid reason for that assumption. The majority of agricultural peoples, including even those of religious Christian countries of Europe of today, perform magical and religious ceremonies for the express purpose of securing good crops. The mere fact of their doing so throws no light upon how they came into possession of the custom. Such actions may simply be traditional but the Pawnee claim vigorously that the knowledge of the whole of their ceremonial was given to their ancestors by sky-beings who appeared to them and instructed them on what to do.

The ceremonial of the Pawnee and of the bulk of the North American Indians depends somewhat on the use of "bundles." These usually consist of a buffalo skin wrapping inside which are placed various objects of ceremonial importance, such as an ear of corn, pieces of flint, skins of owls, hawks, and eagles, paints, pipes, tobacco, and always sweet-smelling grasses. Such “bundles” are most cherished and protected and each village has one, and it can only be used by someone who knows the secrets and songs and dances connected with its story.

When the sky or bird-people, the “gods” had taught the people the secrets of the bundles they told them to hold a ceremonial, according to the Pawnee story. This incident is of crucial importance, for it shows what the Creation Story really means to the Pawnee. It provides a clue that will ultimately lead us across thousands of miles in space and back through thousands of years in time. The Pawnee ceremonial performed in the beginning serves to settle, once and for all, the meaning of creation stories to those who have them.

The Pawnee say that the sky-people had a definite and definitive organization which in the beginning was the work of the Creator. They imitated this organization in their first ceremonial, the various divisions of the tribe taking up their respective positions or stations corresponding to the beings of the sky-peoples’ world to whom they were connected. There was thus a complete parallel between the organizations of the Pawnee and their forerunners from the sky-world.

What was all of this intended to do? The answers are provided by the creation story. It was intended to be a ceremonial re-enactment of the creation of their world by the intermediary of the Creator. It included, for instance, an incident in which a priest struck a bowl of water, in imitation of that incident in the creation in which land was produced out of the waters or “seas” of space.

The Pawnee thus had the presumption to imitate the creation of the world by God. They say, moreover, that they were taught to do so by the “gods” or “sky-people” themselves. They claim they did not perform the ceremony on their initiative. Now the question facing us is one of deciding whether we are to take the Pawnee claim seriously, or to conclude that the Pawnee elaborated their ritual, and then invented the creation story to account for it (And “we” have been following the many signs, symbols and other related matters within the Pawnee story itself to help us figure it all out - have you?)

It would seem, at first sight, that some of the creation story is fictitious but the Pawnee themselves have absolutely no doubt about any of it. They say their narratives of creation, and of super-natural beings in general, are true, while those about animals are fiction and used only for teaching purposes. They do not find it unreasonable either to believe that their creation can be repeated in ceremonial fashion. They fiercely believe in the sky or bird-people, and seemingly have no great difficulty about believing in the objective existence of their gods.

The Pawnee assertion that their creation story is true raises difficulties for us. The narrative briefly summarized does not bear the impress of historicity on its face. Nevertheless, the Pawnee must have some excellent reason for insisting upon the Truth of their stories of gods, since they base their ceremonies upon them. It must not be forgotten, also that they distinguish clearly between the stories of gods and those of animals. Hence it is to be presumed that they are well aware of the implications of their faith.

[We wrote earlier on, herein, that those who knew the Pawnee considered them to be highly “religious” - what do you think they are?]

The Pawnee belief in their creation story involves certain questions about their social order that cannot be passed over. In the first place, the Pawnee are evidently certain that their order and ceremonial organization was given to them at the very beginning of their existence as a tribe. They think, or perhaps it might be better to say they know, that they got it from elsewhere - a great Gift. There is, in their knowledge, no reason to believe or even suspect that their ancestors invented their faith or their ceremonies. All is based on what happened in the beginning as it is known by the Pawnee themselves.

This beginning of the Pawnee tribe can be viewed from two points of view, mutually complementary, the internal and the external. The Pawnee version has just been examined, and we find that they have certain definite ideas concerning their beginnings as a people. On the other hand, it is well known that the Pawnee are not the only tribe of the United States, and that they do not live in a cultural vacuum. The Pawnee story of beginnings takes us back to their inception as a tribe. It says that their First Chief and his wife were the first people of the tribe, and they go on to say that the tribe increased from small beginnings to the once great tribe of the Plains. These two series of facts must be harmonized.

The Pawnee believe that they originally possessed a link with the community in space whence they got their Knowledge and wisdom and their Order and Organizational ceremonies. For the Son of the Sun and his wife came down from the sky and were the first people on this earth. They have absolutely no doubts themselves that they originated as a tribe from some other existing community which they know existed in space. For some reason or other, they believe that this earlier group of people enjoyed creative powers unlike anything they possess.

The belief that Organization and Chieftainship go back to the beginning of their race and the establishment of their states is a widespread belief in this world of ours. The tribes of the United States, those who advanced beyond the primitive food-gathering stage of culture, universally ascribe their rulers and order and ceremonials to the beginning of their existence as a community. They usually believe that their creators were sky-people from another world who populated this world. They believe, likewise, that the earlier people in the sky were organized exactly like themselves. They are, in short, fervent believers in continuity, and in no respect do they claim originality for themselves.

We jump for a moment, now, to Japan.

The Japanese provide perhaps the most graphic instance of this continuity. They believe that their Archipelago was created by beings from space, a sky-world, which preceded habitable land here. The space beings came down and peopled Japan and provided the Ruling Family, descended like the First Chief of the Pawnee, from the “Rising Sun.” The ritual of the national cult of Japan is based upon certain incidents in the story of origin, especially that in which Amaterasu, the ancestress of the Mikado, hid herself in a rock, and had to be enticed forth. The different families of the aristocracy, the civil and sacred branches alike, are reputed to be descended in a continuous line from the people of the space-world who came in attendance on Jimnu Tenno, the grandson of Amaterasu, who founded the ruling house of Japan. The Japanese therefore clearly ascribe their ruling group, and the whole of their Order and ceremonial organization, to the people of the sky-world who preceded them. They assert that their Mikados are the direct descendants of the space or sky-people. They provide in this respect a direct parallel to the Pawnee.

The same result meets the searcher in other places. Everywhere people and tribes claim that their culture was introduced by aliens, usually connected with the sky or with other worlds in space. The Aborigines of Australia, for instance, assert with no uncertain voice that “strangers” gave them all they have. Many other examples could be added. It may, therefore, be taken as a working hypothesis, that creation stories, orders, organizations, families, ruling classes, rituals, and so forth are believed to be true, and that the people believe that they themselves were created by an actual community or communities which preceded them on another earth or earths.

The creation story of the Pawnee and others does not simply assert that they were preceded by another community, living in space. It goes on to make certain definite assertions about these alien people. They were creators who established their earth and gave them Life. The story says this actually happened, and we must take the assertion seriously.

Wherever we turn throughout this world we find people imitating the creation of habitable land and of human life in their ceremonies and rituals. They universally state that these ceremonies and rituals were taught to them by their predecessors. Each community must therefore be regarded as a link in a cultural chain, joining it to other communities. All these peoples imitate something that could not have totally happened as recorded (any more than the Adam and Eve story), and yet they believe it to be true. It is therefore evident that none of these peoples provide us with the original creation story and ritual. In fact, we can trace these stories back to Mexico to the Aztec, and back to the Maya in Guatemala and Honduras and even to the Quiché of Guatemala.

What is the meaning of this vast series of communities, all seemingly merging into one another, all practicing rituals and ceremonies they believe to be the dramatic representation of some event that happened in the past? It can be said at once that none of them can reveal any real information concerning the source of its culture, its creation story, its organization, and its ceremonies. Each owes it to a process of continuous reproduction, among new groups of people, of a definite form of ceremonial that imitates an original version. For example, none of the Polynesians are more illuminating than the Japanese or Pawnee. The Samoans say that beings in the sky fished up their islands and then came down to them. Nowhere do we seem to find an explicit explanation of beginnings. All derive their authority from the past, and simply carry on their handed down traditions and rituals.

This repeated reference from one source to an earlier will eventually lead back to one definite place. In North America the source would most likely lead us to the place of the Maya. But that does not necessarily mean that the story originated there. For civilizations possessing creation stories existed thousands upon thousands of years before, especially in Sumeria, Egypt, Atlantis and Babylonia. The facts, therefore, only make the Maya a Link in the Chain.

It is far more reasonable to seek for light in the regions of the first known civilizations. If we can discover a country to which the series of creation stories can be traced back, and where the story had a literal meaning, then that country may be taken provisionally as the place of origin of the vast proliferation of creation stories, sagas, myths, and rituals that we have been examining.

It is hardly likely that more than one such country will be discovered. On the other hand, to be fair, it is almost inconceivable that such a multitude of peoples could be simply behaving like a set of robots, dancing and singing under the control of beings of whose existence they have but the vaguest notion. Yet, to the scientists of our day this is the logical explanation of the widespread belief in the truth of these creation stories.

The hypothesis, that all communities that have creation stories and rituals are linked together, involves another. For all these communities say their ruling group came to them from their predecessors. Therefore, in like manner, there is probably only one set of ruling groups. This leads us to the Theory of Dynastic Continuity. Each community in the series has derived its ruling group from some pre-existing ruling group, and has handed it on to the next. In this way a ruling group that originated in the place where the original Creation took place has spread throughout this Earth of ours.

The study of the Pawnee creation stories involves yet another consideration. It will be remembered that the beings of the sky-world who performed the Creation of Life here, were believed to be “gods.” The rituals and ceremonies are supposed to be imitations of the acts of these “gods.” Since we have concluded, provisionally, that the creating people were really the first community preceding all communities here, it follows that these “gods” must have been humankind in some place or other, corresponding, it may be, to the King of Tyre. Therefore, if we go back far enough in the line of peoples that gave rise to the Pawnee, we shall ultimately arrive at “gods” who will certainly be in some kind of human form.

I must here refer briefly to the dramatic element in the creation ritual. This ritual is dramatic: it is the re-enactment of events or happenings that have some peculiar or mysterious significance. The dramatic performance plays an essential part in the ritual. Its existence, likewise, is sure proof of the reality of some events recorded in the creation story. Men and women would not start re-enacting something that never happened. They may, after a time, forget or lose the original story, and muddle it, but the original version must be real, whatever it was. All of this goes to the roots of the problems involved with Symbolism, Signs, and Faiths, and constitutes a real problem of the first magnitude in solving the mystery surrounding them. And these rituals and ceremonies are just this, Symbols and Signs, and so forth.

The evidence cited so far has given us the hint that the original “gods” were men and women and came from somewhere outside of this Earth. Hence, we must now look for communities in which there is a closer connection between men and “gods” than is found among the Pawnee and the Maya-India.

I have adopted, as a working hypothesis, the view that all communities with creation stories form a closed circle. None of them claim originality. All assert that their Ritual is an imitation of what the “gods” did originally. I choose a place in which rulers, correspond more or less closely to the sky-descended First Chief of the Pawnee and who carry on ceremonies that are supposed to imitate the descent and creation, and to learn what we can from them.

I have chosen for our examination the Brahmanas of India, particularly the Satapatha Brahmana, translated by Julius C. Eggeling in "The Sacred Book of the East." These volumes of texts are a gold mine of information. They include many signs, symbols, and myths, which enable us to work out in detail the relationship between ritual and creation stories.

The Brahmana ceremonies and rituals were practiced during the period just after the Vedas, especially the Rig Veda, were compiled. The date of their composition is about 700 BC. Thus we are dealing with people who lived over 2,600 years ago, much nearer to the "gods" than the Pawnee.

Ancient Indian society in the time of the compilation of the Brahmanas was based on a rigid hierarchy. First came the King, the member of the Kshatriya class. Then the Priest, the Brahmin. Then the clansman, as he is called, the Vaisya. And finally, the "outcaste," the Sudra, who might very well be of Royal blood.

The King usually belonged, or claimed to belong, to the Solar race, the paramount ruling group of ancient India. He was closely connected with a world beyond the sky, where he would eventually go. He claimed descent from the great beings of the past, from Mahasammata, or Manu, or from Yama, the Son of the Sun. He therefore bears some resemblance to the Son of the Sun, the First Ruler of the Pawnee. This common characteristic lends support to our decision to examine the Brahmanas as exemplifying the ritual of a people analogous to the sky-people who gave the Pawnee their Organization and Ritual.

The Satapatha Brahmana consists of a number of ceremonials, to be performed on certain occasions. There are the daily morning and evening libations. The New and Full moon sacrifices that are performed each month. The Seasonal Sacrifices. The Soma Sacrifices, at which the divine drink is concocted and drunk. The building of the great Fire-Altar, the aim of which is the attainment of immortality for the King; and the important series of consecration ceremonies, whereby the Kshatryia is made into a king or emperor.

This great accumulation of rituals centers around the person of the king. He is called the Sacrificer, and is supposed to perform the various ceremonials. Actually, of course, the priest, the Brahmin, is the officiant. The kingship in India was closely bound up with the ritual of the state, so that it is impossible to conceive of one without the other. The king and the priest therefore represent that part of the community which is concerned with the carrying on of ritual. The rest of the people take little, or no, part in this activity, especially in the more important rites. The king in India corresponded closely with the First Chief of the Pawnee. Both are of solar race, and both are high priests. They form the connecting links between their own people and the sky-people.

The ceremonies of the Satapatha Brahmana constitute a whole, for they are all based on the story of creation, which is recounted more than once. Every incident is based on some episode in the story and it is expressly stated, time after time, that the actions of the priest are in strict accordance with those of the “gods” in the beginning. In addition to this dramatic characteristic the rituals resemble one another in their procedure. For instance, most of them contain a series of rites whereby the king, or the priest, is subjected to a ritual process of death and rebirth.

The Pawnee creation story says that in the beginning the people were taught by the bird or sky people to perform the rituals in imitation of the Creation. It does not, however, mention the purpose of the rituals. The Brahmanas, on the other hand, mention the purpose of the imitation. For in them we see clearly that the creation rituals are closely connected with the king, and that king performs the creation imitation ritual for a definite purpose and reason.

The ruler of the Ancient Indian State ruled because he belonged to an alien race, the “Cosmos Race.” But he could not rule until he was duly consecrated. This is the common characteristic of kings throughout the whole range of human society (see A.M. Hocart, in his book “Kingship”).

It is often imagined that a ruling Family emerges spontaneously in any community, by virtue of the presence of men and women of strong character, who impose themselves upon the people and rule over them. Such a supposition ignores the real nature of the kingship in very early societies. For originally the king, as in India, played a part of the fundamental importance in the State. Indeed, as Louis XIV said, he was the state. But, even if it be agreed that a strong man or woman could become Ruler, that does not explain how he or she could found a dynasty, nor does it explain the great pains that Rulers have always taken to establish their legitimacy. At any period in history royal birth is perfectly well understood. The ruler always has to be consecrated. They are the incarnation of a social institution. It is the Rulership that counts, not the ruler that has been demonstrated beyond any doubt throughout our history.

The consecration ceremony of the king in India (Ancient kings) is an imitation of what is supposed to have happened to the “gods” in the beginning. It imitates, moreover, what happened at the creation. It is somewhat curious to learn that a consecration of a ruler is a creation ceremony. It is still more curious to turn the equation around, and to realize that the creation story is partly at least, linked to a consecration ceremony. There does not seem to be any tangible connection between rulership and creation, yet the evidence for it is there, patent and undeniable.

The king acts as the Creator in the consecration ceremony. This ritual contains minor rites, the aims of which are to create food for the ruler's subjects in the shape of plants and animals. The king in India was also endowed with magical powers necessary to maintain the health of crops and livestock. He is a magical fertility king, such as the anthropologists have made familiar to us. In his person he incarnates the prosperity of the state.

The king also is supposed to create subjects for himself, in imitation of the original creation of men and women here by the Alien Cosmos race. During the course of the consecration ceremony, the king goes on a round of visits to the chief personages in the state. He goes to the priest, the queen, the commander of the army, and others. In this manner he inaugurates the organization of the state and makes it a definite Unity centering around himself.

This is in direct relation to the original ceremony of the Pawnee, in which the various groups of the tribe were placed in certain positions and the entire tribe was to place themselves around the Chief like the sky-beings. The ancient state in India, as in many other countries, had a system that was laid down by regulations. Everything had to conform to this arrangement of the state, of which the king was the center. Remove him, and very little else remains.

The kingship then in India is an institution, and is not dependent on an emergence of a strong personality, such as a Napoleon. On the contrary the kingship is simply a function of the early state - it is part of the general theory of the state that early men and women had evolved. Somehow or other, they had come to agree that the king was the incarnation of the fertility and prosperity, the Well-Being, then of the state. It seems impossible to imagine the early state without the kingship, or the early kingship without the consecration in which the king creates everything for himself.

The creation of plants, animals, and people, together with the inauguration of the state, does not exhaust the activities of the king in his consecration and other ceremonials. His activities are based on those of the original Creator, to whom we will now give our attention to. In India the Creator is named Pragapati, the Lord of Production. He came into being in a mysterious way, and proceeded to create the worlds and their inhabitants. He first created the waters. He then entered these waters, whence an egg emerged that gave rise to the air. Then, by a series of similar processes, he produced the sun, the stars, the earths, and all the Life forms to live on them.

Pragapati resembles Tirawa of the Pawnee, except that he acts directly, instead of by means of intermediaries. Both Pragapati and Tirawa produce this earth out of the primordial waters they had already created. But there is another important distinction between them. Tirawa is accompanied in the sky by gods, and there is not mention of a previous stage. Pragapati actually created the gods after the earths were formed (later Indian script changed “earths” to “earth”). This suggests, therefore, that Pragapati is a super-god, who preceded the “sky-gods,” and created them as he created people here. He, therefore, provides us with a problem of absorbing interest; he marks another stage in our search after the origin of gods and “gods.”

The King in India imitated Pragapati in that he created subjects, plants, and animals. He also imitated him in creating this earth, but he does not do this in the consecration ceremony, but in connection with the building of the Fire-Altar. This erection consists of a vast number of bricks, built up in seven layers to resemble a gigantic falcon. In the midst of this altar is a fire-pan, in which is placed a small golden image of a man, and upon it a gold plate.

The building of the Fire-Altar is prefaced by a long narration of the creation story. This creation is imitated in the building of the structure, and the making of the fire-pan is an imitation of the creation of the first lands out of the waters. The king, therefore is a creator, just as is Pragapati. He makes this earth. He does more - he creates the gods.

The texts of the Brahmanas make it clear that the gods once did not exist. The king came first, for in imitating Pragapati, he actually makes them. The situation is, however, yet more complicated. The king makes the gods, like Pragapati. He also makes himself, in the course of his consecration and other ceremonials, into a god.

One aim of the consecration of the king in India was to endow him with "life," which he imparts to the community. He is supposed to maintain the health and vigor of the crops, of the flocks and herds, and of the subjects over whom he rules. He may therefore be regarded as the incarnated one of a life-giving spirit. The king being endowed with this gift of “life” imparts it to newborn children and to invalids.

The king’s consecration is thus a means of ensuring the continued prosperity of the state by means of the “life” that the king acquires. But no explanation has been given of the relationship between the “life-giving” powers of the king and his acquisition of this divine power or divine right, except to say that the king becomes a “god” - and we still have to inquire what that phrase really means to them.

The Brahmanas state that the gods did not acquire their status until they gained access to the world of the sky-people. The king attains the sky world during his consecration. He and his wife climb a seventeen-sided post. The king raises his head above the top of the post, and proclaims he has reached the earth above the sky, and has become immortal and a Son of Pragapati, that is to say, a god. So, he seems to become a god by becoming immortal, which is accomplished by reaching the sky.

The Brahmanas are shot through and through with the notion of immortality, the priests declare that immortality is the highest thing in the Universe. Whole rituals are devoted to its acquisition. The building of the Fire-Altar is for the sole purpose of insuring for the king an immortal body in the life to come beyond the skies and the sky-people. Somehow, this all gets muddled and something gets lost.

Sooner or later, we are going to have to solve the mystery of how the very First Chief of the Pawnee came to be, as well as, how the First King of India came to be. Did they come from the “gods” or the gods? We shall see.

As we have said, the Fire-Altar’s sole purpose was to insure the king’s immortality. The means adopted is that of raising a golden man, and a gold plate, by means of the great brick Falcon, to the skies, the very source of Life and Immortality. Gold is immortal life, say the Brahmanas, with a persistence that is almost wearisome, therefore it is used, somehow, to gain immortality for the king.

Mention is often made of a “belief in immortality,” and learned tomes are written to explain how primitive man, reasoning on the experiences of visitations, dreams, and visions came to believe that he was immortal and would exist after death. The fact that the king had to go to enormous expense of time and substance to acquire immortality shows that this facile mode of argument does not meet the point. The king acquired immortality in what might be termed a mechanical way. He did not believe in an immortal soul as a matter of faith. He actually made an immortal body in which he might dwell after death. Failing this immortal body, he could not gain immortality. It is thus seemingly legitimate to say that early religious men and women acquired their immortality by their own efforts, and not by a gift or by imagination - this was their belief, their faith.

Let us examine the process whereby the king (and possibly all of his subjects) worked out his own salvation and convinced himself that he had worked out the means of acquiring immortality.

The consecration ceremony and the building of the Fire-Altar are based on the creation story, which is centered around the person Pragapati, the father of a king. The inference seems, therefore, that the creation ritual is partly one by which immortality was gained by Pragapati, by the creation of an immortal body in which he might live in the world beyond the skies. Presumably, therefore, the father of the king made himself immortal and divine, by this means. The king himself, by imitating this ritual of immortality in his consecration ceremony makes himself divine and also immortal, and further, it must be remembered, acquires the "life" that is able to impart to the community as a whole.

The Brahmanas present us with the spectacle of a community in which the ruling class possessed the gift of immortality, and ready access after death to the world beyond the sky, whence came the “life” that animates the people. The speculation of Indian philosophers of this period, which are embodied in the Upanishads, are based wholly on the notion of Life, interpreted mainly in terms of breath. Take away this “Life-motive” and little else remains of the Brahmanas and the Upanishads.

An illuminating contrast can be made between the Pawnee Indians of America, and the people of Asia who were concerned in the compilation of the Indian Brahmanas. The whole of the Pawnee ritual is based upon the conception of “life” which is associated in the closest possible manner with the breath, the life-giving quality of the sky-people. The Pawnee ritual is concerned with the continuous flow of this life-giving breath in order that the tribe may continue to exist and prosper.

This explains the intense desire of many cultures to maintain intact their rituals and the explanatory stories behind them. The whole ritual complex constitutes a mechanism for the securing of “life.” They believe that their very existence depends upon these things, Now and Then. The people have been taught this since their conception, and do their utmost to act up to it. Every possible means is adopted to gain the “life” that is so desired. Every possible means is ritually adopted to gain the life that is so desired. Ears of corn, feathers of certain birds, totems, the sun, the moon, the stars, songs and dances, certain colors are among the devices used for the purpose. But, in spite of this diversity of means, there is one sole ultimate source of this “life,” The Creator itself. The whole ceremonial complex centers around the Creation just as it centers around the king in India.

The degree to which the story and ritual of “life” penetrated the lives of the Pawnee can be told by another story. An anthropologist’s studying of the Pawnee asked a priest and a medicine man to tell her their creation story. One, a medicine man, said that he was so old that it did not matter if he told his story. It was part of his life, but as he was so near death, it made no difference if he died a little sooner. A younger man, a priest, refused to part with some of his “life” by telling the story that he knew.

Most of the American Indians believe that they are immortal, or that their spirit is immortal and that death is simply a “life” change (this is also the belief of the natives of Australia).

In India immortality was the privilege of the Children of the Sun, the divine kings, the offspring of the original first king, the priests, queen, and so forth.

All the facts up to now show quite some harmony between the Pawnee and the peoples of early India. They show that the Pawnee have retained in their stories, positive knowledge of a form of society from which they got their culture, but of which they now have no Clear Knowledge of. They have a story that relates when the sky people or bird-people left this earth, they sent down one of their number called “lightning” to insure their immortality.

Many peoples, throughout this world, say that they once had immortality, but lost it. Although they are unsure of how they lost it, this “unsureness” is what prompted many of the early religious sacrificial rites, including those of actual human-sacrifices wherein a human life was given to appease the gods and induce the return of the lost immortality.

“And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them, that the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose... There were giants in the earth in those days, and also after that, when the sons of God came into the daughters of men, and they bear children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown.” (Genesis 6:1, 2, 4.)

I don't know how you of The 13 would interpret those three verses in Genesis six but keep them in mind as we go along.

The First Chief of the Pawnee and the earliest kings of India all claimed descent from the sky-peoples and the Solar Realm. The king in India is made into a Sun god in the course of his consecration. Already various lines of discussion have led us to conceive of the different peoples who have creation stories, and rituals imitating them, as being in some way or another connected. The existence of the Children of the Sun, for example, in two widely separated areas of our world suggests that Solar-Cosmos ruling groups formed the connecting links in the Chain of Life.

One way of further testing this hypothesis of continuity is to examine the creation and other stories of the Pawnee. The information from this should reveal a form of society similar to, if not identical with, that of Ancient India and other countries. This earlier society, connected with the sky-worlds, should correspond to those of the countries south of the United States where it is believed the Pawnee migrated from. This study of the Pawnee should enable us to emerge into another world, unfamiliar to the Pawnee themselves, but familiar to those of us, who are able to study the lives of other peoples.

We begin with one called a Son of the Sun, the First Chief of the Pawnee. There is no doubt that the first line of rulers in the vast region extending from India to America was that of the Children of the Sun. They were the first known rulers throughout Americas, from North to South. They ruled also over the Natchez of Louisiana. These "Suns" said that their ancestors came up from the southwest, which is the direction of Mexico and South America, from a place where there were "many Suns." This movement (Natchez) from out of Mexico was probably similar to that which gave rise to the Pawnee, the only difference being that the Pawnee lost their original Solar Rulers, while the Natchez preserved theirs. It is hardly necessary to mention the Incas of Peru, who are among the best-known members of this great ruling family of the Americas, the "Suns." They claimed to be incarnate gods, far above mankinds, upon whose faces ordinary men and women could not gaze with impunity, so wonderful were they.

The story that the First Chief of the Pawnee was a Son of the Sun is, therefore, probably correct. He belongs to a group of rulers that has indelibly left its mark on the history of the Americas and other countries of our Earth. It is not reasonable to argue that what is well-known history in the case of the Natchez and the Peruvians is fiction or myth because it occurs in the creation story of the Pawnee, the Zuni Indians, and others.

The Children of the Sun were the First Rulers in the Pacific. The Samoans have preserved the story of their coming and of the foundation by them of the ruling house of the group. This story supplements that of the Pawnee, for it tells how the Sa Tagaloa came from the sky-world and brought with them the organization of the state.

The Samoan branch of the Children of the Sun is interesting in view of its close connection with the bird-people from whence came the Son of the Sun of the Pawnee. The great temple was called "The Shining House," and represented the ninth heaven, from where these people had come. Other stories tell of these early settlers going up into the sky for "council meetings" and then returning. Hawaiian stories speak of a certain Eyeball of the Sun, who lived on the borders of Tahiti in a place called "The Shining Heavens." The Japanese royal family claims to be descended from a Solar Race. The palace of the Mikado is called "The August House of the Sun," his courtiers are called "men above the clouds,” and the rural districts are “distant from heaven,” and the heir to the throne is styled “August Child of the Sun,” and the Emperor himself is “The Grandchild of the Sun,” or the “Heavenly Grandchild.” In one ritual of the Brahmanas the sky is on the earth. When the king wishes to go to the sky, he follows this ritual: The great ceremonial hall contains two hearths, one of them representing this earth and the other the sky. The king simply steps on the hearth of his choice, and there he is, here or there. The Egyptian texts are full of references to “The Opening of the Doors of the Sky.”

These, and other instances, show that the Pawnee are not merely indulging in idle phantasy when they speak of the “bird-people” in the sky-worlds being capable of sending their people to this earth. The Children of the Sun lived in the sky even when they are upon the earth; they are sky-beings.

The Pawnees give, in other stories of beginnings, statements that serve still further to illuminate the past, and to show with increasing clearness that their first people and ruler were derived from the great family or families of the Children of the Sun. One story says that the children born of the first rulers were alternately boys and girls who married each other when they arrived at maturity and founded the Pawnee tribes.

This incident introduces us to a large series of episodes in which the Children of the Sun practice incestuous unions, usually between brothers and sisters; or in which ruling houses, claiming descent from the sky-people, say that their ancestors were a brother and a sister, or a mother and son, or a father and daughter. The incestuous union was the common form of “marriage” in these ruling families from Egypt to America (even Genesis leads us to the same conclusions). Throughout Egyptian history the Royal Family practiced it. The king married his sister, who was the heiress to the throne. Sometimes a son married his mother for the same reason. Indian history and sagas abound in instances of the same form of union. Pragapati, the creator, had a cosmic king as a son, this son was born of the union between Pragapati and his own daughter. In like manner Manu, a personage who figures in the flood story of the Brahmanas married his daughter. Yama, the first king to find his way to the land of the dead, is also associated with the idea of incestuous unions in the solar families. Yama and Yami, his sister, were the children of Vivasvant, a sun. A hymn in the Rig Veda recounts how Yami approached Yama with the proposal that they should unite. Yama rejected the proposal. This suggests the former existence of a brother-sister marriage in the Royal Family of India. The inference is the more reasonable in the light of the corresponding story in the Persian writings. The Avesta includes material derived from the time before the ancestors of the compilers of the Rig Veda moved into India from Persia and Afghanistan. Yima corresponds to Yama. He and his sister are the Children of Vivasvant, and they form an incestuous union. Therefore, it would seem that before the fusion between Aryan-speaking peoples of Iran the royal family contracted incestuous unions, but that when the solar family came into India, this form of marriage was given up.

The Buddhist chronicles throw still more light upon this sort of union. Buddha himself belonged to the solar line, for he was one of the Sakhya Family. The zeal of his disciples has caused them to preserve everything connected with him, so they have naturally recorded all that is known of his ancestry. The story goes that the first ancestor of Buddha was Maha Sammata, who was of the race of the Sun, and was born in a “miraculous” manner. His body shone like the Sun, a common characteristic of solar kings (remember the story of Jesus in the New Testament?) and he was able to raise himself in the air at will, just like the eyeball of the Sun in Tahiti and the bird-people from the sky.

Maha Sammata had many descendants, who spread far and wide and founded kingdoms, taking with them their ritual, their organization, and their creation sagas. One branch founded Kapilavastu. The reason was an intrigue on the part of a minor queen, who managed to persuade the king to allow her son to succeed, instead of the sons of the ruling queen. The dis-possessed sons went away, accompanied by many people, and founded Kapilavastu. The daughters, hearing of their departure, and realizing that there was no one at home to care for them, went to join their brothers. When they had settled down with them, the question of marriage occurred. These high-born princes and princesses were reluctant to marry the daughters and sons of the neighboring kings, because they were not high enough in rank. They therefore decided to marry each other to maintain the purity of the race. That is why they were called Sakhya, which means pure. The practice of incestuous unions was widely practiced in ancient times, for if they were not, there would have been no survival of the physical-vessel man-woman.

The Japanese royal family claims descent from incestuous unions, also; the best-known instances in the Americas of such incestuous unions are those of the Incas of Peru. These Children of the Sun took as their chief queens their sisters and the off-spring of these unions became heirs to the throne.

This evidence, to which we could add much more, shows once more that the evidence in the Pawnee origin stories are true. It is patent that the First Chief of the Pawnee belonged to another race, whether it be called Solar, Cosmic, or sky-race, and which is widespread all over our globe, from Sumeria to the Americas.

It is useful, in an account such as this, to gather up the threads of the argument whenever possible. Certain incidents require cleaning up if the knowledge we are advancing is to gain in weight. It is necessary, for example, to address the disappearance of the sky-people and the Children of the Sun from our Earth in so many different parts of it, suddenly and mysteriously. It is further necessary to explain the loss of immortality claimed to have happened to so many of these different peoples by their own stories dealing with this subject. Its reacquisition is, for example, the aim of the ritual in India and elsewhere.

The disappearance of the Children of the Sun in various parts of the world is explained by the people, in some instances, in a perfectly logical manner. Our study of ritual shows that the king in India had to be consecrated along with his queen. Together they were eventually to transcend to the Sky-World. Belonging as they did to the sky-born race, they were entitled to go to that world, just like the First Family (Royal) of Samoa. Therefore, if for any reason, a woman of high enough rank was lacking, the king could not be consecrated in the proper manner. He could not acquire all the necessary power without the proper queen to be made into a “god” and acquire immortality. All this happens if he is unable to get a sky-born queen to accompany him.

The Buddhist annals of Ceylon and Burma recognize this fact clearly. They give several instances in which the Solar line became extinct because of the absence of a queen of the proper rank. The annals of Ceylon say that the first sky-race king of the island, Vijaya by name, who came there from India, bringing with him seven hundred officers of state, could not be consecrated until he had sent to the king of Madhura, in southern India, to seek his daughter in marriage. She came, and brought with her seven hundred daughters of nobles to unite with the officers of state. Vijaya’s nobles insisted upon this condition, because so long as the king remained unconsecrated, the state could not function properly.

The loss of immortality is shown clearly in the Samoan narratives. The Sky-World line became extinct because the ruler did not marry a woman of like rank. His son therefore became a ruler of lesser rank, a rank of this world and not, therefore, of the Sky-World, for he inherited only the titles of his mother. This particular king is spoken of as the first “mortal” king of Samoa. Mention is also made of the first mortal king of Boni, one of the Bugi states of Celebes.

These instances help to explain how a host of peoples explained their loss of immortality which they all claim they possessed from the very beginnings of their race here on this Earth. And the bible story in Genesis is saying exactly the same thing in a mythical way and then repeats it in a slightly different way with its story of Noah and his family and the flood, with another round of incestuous unions between Noah’s children who were the only survivors according to the bible.

This insistence upon the incestuous union, or, it might be better to say, the union between two pure-blooded descendants of the sky-world people, can be regarded in another light.

Wherever the Children of the Sun are found they practice this type of union. So, on their arrival at any place, say Samoa, they must have come from some other place where the practice was orthodox. In such a manner, the ancestors of the royal family of Japan, Izanaqi and Izanami, must have been the children of an incestuous union, or a union between full-blooded members of the Solar or Cosmic line. It would seem, from this consideration, that the only satisfactory explanation of the facts is provided by the inference that the sky-world lines throughout this world are all linked to other such lines, and, consequently, to each other. This conclusion harmonizes with those already suggested by our examination of various creation stories and their organizations and rituals. We seem to be concerned all the while with a continuous process of unfolding. One community springs into another, or, gives rise to another, through migration, with its organizational forms of Life intact and undergoes Change in an environmental sense and through inter-marriages. Whole or partial communities must have migrated, such as the case cited in India, taking with them a leader, rules and rites, and their organization. And, of course, they took with them their creation stories and their rituals, which is the thread which is gradually leading us back to the beginning.

There would seem to be little doubt now that the Royal Family of India of the solar or cosmic line is, somehow, in some way, connected with the First Chief and his Family of the Pawnee nation. More evidence could be adduced from the stories of the Pawnee to show that the form of Society depicted therein is not imaginary but real. For example, we are told of the daughters of chiefs who were secluded, and who became pregnant by a sky-being, presumably on later visits to this Earth for that single purpose. Such incidents are characteristic of stories told by the Children of the Sun from Egypt to Peru. Many other Ancient Cultures had their Temples of Virgins, maidens kept secluded to serve only the gods. This very practice also occurred in Peru, where Royal Virgins, these girls were kept in nunnery-like seclusion where one of them was elected to be the queen of her brother. No man was allowed access to them. If any one of them was found with child they were put to death, unless she claimed the Sun as the Father (here is one instance of where fact and superstition, or, reality and myth came into being). In such a case the girl was highly honored and if she had a son he was admitted into the royal race as a prince. If the child was a girl, we are not told her fate.

The seclusion of the princesses was an obvious precaution. They were, in so many places, heiresses to the throne, that the man who married them became king. The royal family would not tolerate the possibility of an outsider sharing the throne, and so started the practice of secluding their women, which is still practiced in various ways around our world today.

The last feature of early society, which I wish to mention here in the Pawnee stories, is the existence of what we call Dual Villages. Several stories speak of former villages arranged North and South on a street running East and West. Each side of the street had a Chief. The Son of the Chief of one side of the street married the daughter of the Chief of the other side of the street.

This is the description of the form of village ruled over in such places as Samoa and Peru and some areas of Africa and elsewhere by the Children of the Sun or the Children of the Sky-World People or the Bird-People. This form of village is what has been called part of the Dual Organization of Society. These two divisions of a community had definite characteristics. The members usually inter-married. One side had a Sacred Chief connected with Peace - the other side had a secular Chief associated with War. The Son of the Sun was originally the Sacred Chief (shades of the Essenes). The two sides were constantly hostile. They were associated with different colors. This extremely complicated and unusual form of civilization was introduced throughout this world by the Children of the Sun wherever they migrated to. Yet, this whole system of Society gradually broke down and no one, no science and no religion has ever been able to explain it, other than to call these creation stories myths, while on the other hand accepting the biblical account of creation as truth!

The examination of all the creation stories known to us on this earth leads us to the conclusion that all these “true” stories cannot be true. Even Evolution is a Creation Story with its very own Rituals, including the Survival of the Fittest.

All of these stories have brought us face to face with what we cite as the Archaic civilizations of this Earth and how they came to be. It is now obvious that the original community and Family from which the Pawnee eventually emerged was one ruled-over by pure-bred sky-world people or the Children of the Sun. They practiced, to some extent, incestuous unions, and were supposed to be borne by a process of theogony. The Royal Family secluded their daughters, they ruled over dual communities, the two sides of which intermarried. This system can be recognized in many places, not only in the Americas, but right across the Pacific to India, and further west to Egypt. A series of linked communities strung along a thread. The solution of where this thread started involves an explanation of how the Children of the Sun, its Royal Family, that is, originated, and how it became to be associated with many distant communities. None of the peoples involved in this give any hint in their creative stories, their sagas or their mythology as to how or when or where this process began. We are faced, historically and scientifically, in all cases, with an accomplished fact, with an organized state and society already far removed from original conditions. The Indian Brahmanas, for example, do not throw any light whatever on the beginning of Cosmic or Solar Race, nor on the Children of the Sun. The Japanese stories and even their mythology tells us nothing either, and the Americas tell us still less about the actual happenings of the beginning. It becomes increasingly apparent as we dig deeper and deeper into our search for the beginning of man-woman here on historical, religious, or scientific grounds we find only darkness.

It is, however, possible to find some historic records pertaining to the Children of the Sun, the sky-world beings and the Bird-People. For the first of these we need to go to Egypt.

In Egypt "Re" was the Sun God. The Children of the Sun, the Kings of Egypt, always incorporated in their names this "Re" designating them as "gods." For example, the kings of the Second, the Third, and the Fourth Dynasties were named Renob of the 2nd; Nebkere and Neferkere of the 3rd; and Dedefre, Khafre, and Monkure of the 4th Dynasty.

The first king of the 4th Dynasty was Khufu (Cheops) who supposedly predicted the birth of three sons to the sun-god Re by the high-priestess of Heliopolis. This is the first known (historically) use of the doctrine relating to the Sun, but the king in Egypt was always known as a god from the very earliest of times. He was considered the reincarnation of Horus and the two protecting goddesses of Upper and Lower Egypt respectively. He was called the “good god” or the “beautiful god,” which title he assumed on his consecration. The association between kingship and godhead was closer in Egypt and Sumeria than in any other country. This is in keeping with the fact that the Solar or Cosmic titles and the doctrines of “divine births” can first be traced in Egypt and Sumeria through picture writings and cuneiform tablets as well as in hieroglyphics in their various stages of use and perfections (we will get back to this later).

Now, the Indian and Egyptian kingship can be compared in many ways. As a member of the solar line, the Indian king was made into a series of solar deities. These are the Adityas, the sons of Aditi, who is connected with the cow. The Egyptian king likewise is made into a god, Horus, and his foster mother is Hathor, the “House of Horus,” also is connected with the cow. Like the king in India, the king of Egypt placed the breath of Life in the nostrils of his subjects.

The Indian kingship was not simple. Belonging to Solar line, he was consecrated into a series of solar gods. But one of these gods, Varuna, bears a character that is not wholly solar. He controls the waters, both Above and Below. Yet Varuna is an important god in India because one of the consecration ceremonies is said to be his.

We can trace this concern with Water to the Egyptians. Some facts indicate that the early kingship in Egypt arose in connection with the Nile and especially so with its irrigation system upon which Egypt has always depended for its sustenance. The first king in Egypt was, in all probability, the one who organized the irrigation system for the first time, and who probably introduced the first calendar to enable his subjects to measure the year.

The Nile is a peculiar river, in that it floods its banks each year with great regularity (now it is dammed). This flooding began in the latitude of Heliopolis from the 19th to the 21st of July. Obviously, it would be very useful to be able to measure time so as to be capable of knowing just when the next flood would occur. This first calendar was based on the phases of the moon, the word for month in the Egyptian language means "moon." The first king of Egypt was somehow in possession of some great knowledge. He was not only a Water-Fertility king but had knowledge of Astronomy, necessary to measure a geographical degree and thus the circumference of the earth, which he did, but he also had a very accurate science of geography and geodesy and geometry, as well as the knowledge to put together the Sothic Calendar.

The Water-Fertility aspect of the kingship corresponds quite closely to the Varuna kingship of India.

Somewhere between the first king and the First Dynasty kings the kingship in Egypt became complicated by an elaboration of the Cosmos-Solar kingships into an all-powerful “sun-cult” instigated by the priests of Heliopolis. With each succeeding Dynasty this religious obsession with many gods rapidly expanded and a solar theology emerged and the priests claimed credit for the invention of the Sothic Calendar.

This “sun-cult” that seemed to pop-up around the globe at various times in history is, or has been, difficult to explain by scholars, historians, and so forth. We can cite no evidence that the Sky or Bird People nor the Children of the Sun, in the beginning, had anything to do with a “sun-cult” or a “sun religion,” both of which evolved at much later moments in history.

I think that the insight afforded by the organizations and rituals of the various peoples mentioned herein, especially those of the Egyptians and the contents of the Brahmanas, leads us to go a step further, and to say that early-on these were not sun-cults at all, but was simply the identification of the first king, the source of Life to the community, with the great energy giving power of the Sun.

The texts written in the Pyramids of the 5th and 6th dynasties suggest continually that the dead king is identified with the Solar Realms, which the Egyptologists have discerned down to an identification solely with “the Sun.” Yet, so far as we are aware, there is no hint of the worship of the Sun (any more than there is a worship of Indra in India). That “worship” came much later in Egyptian history. The chief personage in the oldest texts of Egypt is clearly the king. He is the great source of Life (not the Sun) and each successive king derived this power from the first king who was of the Bird or Sky People, a race of People alien to this Earth (of course this “derived power” was merely complimentary and not a real power at all).

Again, I Paul, will remind you that the truth is in the bible but that the bible is not the truth. Go directly to Matthew 13:43. Go no further, and go no less.

Immortality is not the consequence of Human Nature, per se, but of Spirit and its natural immortality!

Nothing can be immortal unless it has existed Eternally in some form or another. And that goes for all the God Damned gods and goddesses! - ancient or otherwise. And that my dearest sisters and brothers is no threat.

Do you realize what this communication will mean to the world when it is released? It will be like a bomb exploding in the World of Scholars, Nations, Religions, and so forth.

All of the carefully built theories of all the sciences will crumble, quickly. New concepts about everything involving mankind here and his world will simply have to be reconstructed. This world's Super Powers will be relegated to tin soldiers and their armed forces rendered useless. The enormous magnitude of this whole matter of Truth is actually unfathomable at the moment to the masses. New Worlds' Sciences will be the vogue and everyone will have their own, new theories.

These will be the Anthropologists, Archaeologists, Geologists, Linguists, Astronomers, Historians, and, of course, the Physicists. We should also add to this list the Philosophers, the Psychologists, the Psychiatrists, the Physicians, and others.

What they all need to understand is that the Physical-Vessel Life is the shortest form of Life that exists in the Kosmos but not the Final Form of Life - and not its Final Structure.

Now, since we have established that the South or the Cosmos-Planetary man-woman were the travelers, it is, therefore, conceivable that they travelled to the North and the East as well as the West and had taken in Union “men and women” of the Life-Etheric line as well as those of the Light-Astral lines. So, we need to also establish what is meant by pure blood line, as regards the Cosmos-Planetary line, the Lumerians.

Did they arrive here with peoples as workers, settlers, or, even, as slaves who were not of the “Pure Blood” line of the Pure Lumerian strain, who remained here to establish the various races of this Earth? This would seem to be the case even though prior communications would seem to be saying something different in the case of Involution-Evolution.

So, and quite obvious so, we have some very serious questions to answer here. The problem or question of this Earth’s multiple races and skin colors for one or two. There are many others. We will answer them all when I know who is in and who is out of the Order of Thirteen. For now, I Paul, will go no further.

Well, here we go. First, the Big question of the Origin of Life (man-woman) and of all other life on this Earth has never been fully nor satisfactorily answered.

Now science opts for one or more theories including the big-bang and the Darwinian theme and, the religions opt for one or more of the creation stories, sagas, myths, legends, such as the one in Genesis or the other one therein also. Science and religion agree only that "Life" exists here on this Earth, then they part company. Oh, they have come to an unwritten agreement, science agrees not to write theology and religion agrees not to write science.

So, since the question of who and what and why and when and how Life and life came to be here on this Spaceship Earth of ours has never been successfully answered and, even, how this Spaceship Earth of ours came to Be and be where it is, by any of the sciences known to us or by any of the religions known to us, isn't it obvious that we must look elsewhere for the answers?

Furthermore, when we seek an answer to the origin of man-woman here on W-303 we must also, in conjunction with this, take into account the question of the origin of “Reasoning,” “Consciousness,” or “Awareness of Reasoning and Logic” which only one “Life”-form here on this Earth is Gifted with, i.e., Human Life. Then another big question facing all these scientific theories and the claims of religion is how did all the diverse cultures and races come to be? Why are some of we humans black, some red, some yellow, some white, some a mixture, if we all derived from One strain or genre or species of man-woman or ape or minute form of one-celled Life and so forth? Both science and religion seem to agree that man-woman were the last form of “Life” to come into existence here and both, more or less, agree that Water played a major role in “our” creation. Did not, then, the Sun also?

So, another question comes to mind. Is pigmentation due to environment or does it have something to do with “inter-marriage” between the different species of the Life Form? (The term “marriage” herein being used strictly in the sense of sexual intercourse between a male-female species of the same or of a related specie.) For ensample, if the Light man-woman’s sun was a constant sun with no night, as we know night, would this indicate - explain that their race was black due to their particular constant solar-light environment? And if so, did the white races come from somewhere where there was no Solar Light or where it was blocked from, or deliberately banned, from touching the man-woman of a particular genre?

How would it be possible if we were Perfectly Created but not Created Perfect, to be of different colors and to speak of different languages? Did God know what the hell “he” was doing? And, if “he” did, why the hell don’t we? Or, was man-woman created, not only Perfectly but also Perfect, somewhere else, on another Earth, and, then, beginning to travel the expanse of the Universe, and in that “travelling,” began to lose that Perfection and, now, only lately, in the great expanse of what we cite as time, is beginning to work back to ward that Perfection?

Was there actually an Atlantis? And if so, were the Atlantians Perfect? And if so, what was their origin? And furthermore, where did they disappear to? And where did they come from?

My dear brothers and sisters and Partners, you of the August Order of Thirteen including my-your Spirit Guide and my Advisors, I Paul, will not, must not, leave you ignorant of the facts any longer. I Paul, must tell you all. So here we Go!

Where is Atlantis? The answer is quite simple - wherever you are standing! By this I mean what the “Atlantians” cited as Atlantis, which, translated in Lumerian means “New World,” or more correctly “Last Earth” - yet both of these translations are acceptable. So who are the Atlantians? Again, the answer is quite simple - the Keepers of the Well - the Lumerians - the “Travelers” or the so-called Bird-People (Flyers, then, or Space Travelers) or, as once thought of as “Sky-People,” those who came from above, the very source, even Now, of what we cite as the “UFO People.”

Actually, they are now, as Well as in “our” beginning, our Ancestors as Well as our kin - our “Covenant brothers and sisters,” Spirituals All, as well as blood - blood Kin! And allow me here to give the proper discernment to that word “Covenant”: “To “cut” an agreement or contract to Do and to Be a certain thing.” A covenant we have not kept. A breach of contract then, that keeps us excluded from the New Worlds. We are “cut off.” Sad but True!

So where do we go from here?

Well, let us review our facts and our claims up to this point in time.

But first let me give you a Receiving of mine, dated 6/28/88, 2:30am, from Jesse: “There was no marriage. Rārē, the King of the so-called “Atlantians” there (here) had as his Queen, Sapatia, but they were not “married” as your (our) Culture would say, but there was a Union between them. So, when Rārē exited this Earth, Sapatia was under no obligation to exit with him and she did not. She remained (you can never get even). “Think.” She took Others in Union and established other cultures and societies. And this became the norm for others. “Marriage” as you (we) now know it came with the coming of religion as (we) you now know it - both False Institutions - False, then, because not Spiritual. “Think!” - (end of that particular Receiving) -

I don't think I Paul, need to discern that Receiving for you nor further explain the magnitude of it, nor the fall-out that will occur from it! All I Paul, knows is that I am going Home poorer than I came but richer than I ever expected. And I am going Home for I have beaten the Darkness. But that's another story for another time. Right now, we have more important things to deal with. Like your ability to beat the Darkness also. And you will “IF” you can Come and Follow the Way to “The Way.” And that's the Way all Mystics Spirit Guides Ambassadors Servant Slaves of the LIGHT to LIFE operate so you should have no problem - should you? Let us see.

The Bird-People (actually a UFO designation) or the Sky-People (actually a description of the Lumerians - the Travelers of South 303, one of the four Earths) landed in what we now know as Antarctica and travelled from there to islands in the Mediterranean Sea near one of the old tributaries of the Nile River and established the Capital of Atlantis (W-303) as the “City of Atlantis.” This was the base of, the Foundation Square then, of their explorations. Where they first made touch-down in Antarctica is now known by us as Queen Maud Land (Queen Maud having nothing to do with a Lumerian designation).

From this auspicious beginning came our civilization as we know it, Today.

The Road wasn't an easy one! It never is for Aliens. Always on the Go.

Yes, Blessed are those who dare dream Dreams and are Willing to Pay the Price to make them Come True. This is the Lumerian Code.

Dreams are Thunder - desires are Wants, and Lightning - some too hot to handle - Leave them Alone - most of them are the very matters that do not matter. Not “Now” and most certainly not “Then.” Cowards die a thousand deaths - the Courageous only die once. The former are dead - the Latter Live! Was Jesus a quitter? Was Jesus a Coward? Just who in the hell was Jesus? Was he any better than you? Did he have a greater status in Life than you? Did he have it any easier? No, I think not. Jesus was a human being with exactly the same ancestors as you and I. The Bird-People or the Sky-People - take your pick! And if we, collectively, cannot get that point across, then Christian Spiritualism is, for all good intents and purposes, Dead! We will have Failed! I say we, but I must qualify - I Paul, will not have failed, for I Paul, am not a quitter, I Paul, am not a Coward. I Paul, am no better than any of you. My status in Life, in fact, is probably less than the collective "you's." And I Paul, do not believe I have it any easier than any of you. I Paul, am a Human being - I am a Lumerian. Now you know who I am. Oh, hell yes, I am human, I am living in the USA on W-303, etc., but I Paul am a Lumerian. My Citizenship lies elsewhere. And this my dearest Sisters, Brothers, and Partners you should come to Recognize and Remember!

As I Paul, have said in the past - you really do not know who I am. I Paul, am, like every other race, color, culture of so-called minorities your Equal - not inferior and not superior - just an equal - no more - no less - so be it - Abba Father-Abba!

You see, I Paul, wishes to share his Life and his knowledge with you of The 13 and certainly extend that to the Family of LIFE and LIGHT of the All in ALL but to do this he Needs your full cooperation and your undying attention - “undying ATTENTION” - I cannot teach if you cannot listen! I Paul, am not “Avastor” nor “Avasta.” I Paul, am who I am, nothing else. Also, nothing less. I would appreciate it if you all came to that same understanding about yourselves - it would make my task much easier. Please, make it easier. Each of you accept, graciously, the task given to you, and we will All be happy and prosperous and heading in the same direction - Upwards, or better yet, Outwards! We simply have to go somewhere from here - true? You have a Choice! You can go to one of the Houses of the first Five Pillars, or, you can go Nowhere. You can, if you so desire, remain earthbound. If you wish to spend the remainder of your Precious Life here wasting it, go right ahead but don't waste our time while we are attempting to go Somewhere with Someone Precious.

Now let us get back to the Heart of Signs and Symbols. And I might add this for your singular edification. Lesson 13 to the Order of Thirteen tells “us,” i.e., You, the Order, Its Spirit Guide and my two Advisors, as well as myself, to be prosperous and be Well, by Doing Well. You all have the tremendous opportunity, Right Now, to Live your Life all over again by employing what you now know and have learned from the Message of I Paul. Simply (and, oh God that's a difficult word) make today, the very Now, the First Day of Your Life and go on from there and Do the good, the right, and the true and simply forget Now the bad, the wrong, and the untrue of the Past as if they had never been. Look at the Cross - you have been forgiven - Accept It! Spirit and flesh have done it all for you and for You! This, then, with your acceptance, demands and Commands the slaying of the old man or the old woman and the "putting on" of the New you in your every Word, Act, and Deed! Simply put your hand to the plow and never again looking backwards, plow Upward and To Ward the Light.

I Paul, expect you all to be practicing Spirit Guides under the tutelage of your Practicing Guide as you "hear" and "peruse" this Communication or, I Paul, expect you to be "gone!" And, if you are wondering, there is no threat therein, only a Promise, only a "Promise!" If you do not believe I Paul, can read your minds and your intents, try me out. You don't have a soul, but you do have a spirit, and I Paul, am, almost constantly in touch with Spirit. Lumerians are like that.

Now having said all that, "let us," go Forward and Upwards - hopefully together. Mystics are also like that - they enjoy Company! After all, at the Passover Supper in the Upper Room there was present the Master, twelve Ambassadors, two Advisors, and one Spirit Guide. John Mark and his mother, the Hostess, waited below. Well, John and his mother are no longer with us. Yet, “we” shall go on. After all, this is a collective effort. And I would like to talk to you as Equals, and there is no reason I Paul, should not enjoy that privilege except your attitude and your Action - or the lack of it - then. If any of you wish to wait in the room below - leave us. I'd much rather face an Iscariot. At least, that way, I know where we stand.

You follow David just as I follow Jesse. I sincerely hope that is clear. If either of us go astray, we will be corrected by a force greater than any of you - individually or Collectively. If you are ever in doubt as to what the Right thing is for you to Do check with your Spirit Guide - the Spirit Guide of the Order of Thirteen, that is.

You of the Order of Thirteen do not come to the Mystic of the Family directly. You come only at the Direction of the Spirit Guide of the Order of Thirteen. Only the Spirit Guide of the Order of Thirteen and my Advisors approach me directly with their Advice, their Queries, and their Needs. Then, of course, the Executive Secretary-Treasurer of the Order of Thirteen, as well as the Executive Secretary of the Family of LIFE and LIGHT must always have Direct Access to the Mystic of LIFE and LIGHT or they could not function but, as a matter of courtesy, they should Always and in All Ways attempt to solve their differences or have their queries answered either by the Spirit Guide of the Order of Thirteen or the Director of the Family.

Numerically, the Order of Thirteen is composed of the Numeral One and the Numeral Three - view it from that perspective and from the Numeral Four, its Natural Reduction. All Together They Spell out Something.

One (1) stands for: the Principle of Unity and underlies all numbers. It is also a Creative Numeral. Yet it Always and in all ways retains its Unity. ONE is ONE is ONE!

Three (3) is expressed as an equilateral triangle. It Represents Man-Woman United by Mind, with Spirit. Inverted it Represents Involution-Evolution. Interlaced, these triangles Represent a Compass of the Four Earths. Three (3) down through the Ages has Represented one form of triune or trinity. Three (3) stands for Body, Mind, Spirit and, we might add, it stands for Love - also Fire, Water, and Air.

Four (4) is the Key to Esotericism. The 4th Pillar is Truth (Freedom), and the Fourth Law is Freedom (Truth) and the Fourth Earth Pillar is "Righteous." Four Symbolizes the Cross, the Four Corners of the Earth, the Four Winds, the Four Compass Points as known to man on this Earth but have no bearing in the Kosmos. They also represent the Four Galaxies, the Four Solar Systems in the Universe, not the four outside of it. Four (4) represents the four Qualities for Man-Woman to attain to True Wisdom.

1. An intelligence enlightened by study (to know, then).
2. An intrepidity which nothing can check (in other words, to Dare!).
3. A curiosity without bounds (in other words, “Prove all Things”).
4. A tenacity that nothing can break (in other words, nothing can keep you from “Doing”).

These give such “holders” of these tenets, of these 4 qualities, the ability of discretion to Keep Silent and Come.

The four (4) matters that Do Matter are:

1. Physical
2. Psychical
3. Mental
4. Spiritual

(Now read I Paul Communication Numbered 33,

Now back to the Lumerians, the “Bird or the Sky People.” When Rārē left, sans Queen, he left instructions to bring in other Falcons, Flying Lumerians. The “Landing Fields” were then established. Queen Maud Land, Peru, Colorada, and Alaska, and of course, Siberia - or I Paul, should say, as we know of it, them, today - then, they were but “places” or “safe” landing places on W-303. There were many problems and many hazards.

Yet the designation of all such places was always 13-4 or 8 or 266, or 14; = 5, or 8 + 5 which equals 13, or, if Reduced, Four (4).

Now, at the moment, the Order should only be concerned with “Wolf Tails Pass” in Colorada. Yet, the Order is not to be concerned with it at all - until The Order has Order. There will be no “Rushing Forward Blindly!” Period. I Paul will see to that! Put the House of the Order of Thirteen in Order then your Spirit Guide, your Executive Secretary-Treasurer, and Your Mystic, and his Advisors will turn you loose. And may you Do Well by All. And you will have as your Handbook the Order of Thirteen Communications, its Letters and its Lessons, including its two Presentations and Communication Thirty-Three of the I Paul series, plus those Communications designated to you from the Message of I Paul.

Now do not misconstrue this “Handbook” situation as precluding the overall Message of I Paul, for we imply no such thing. You have the Obligation and the Responsibility to not only read but to know the entire Message of I Paul and to be able and capable to, not only quote from it, but to intelligently teach it. And you must keep in mind that it too has its pitfalls. None of you can learn this Message nor teach it in isolation, or from an isolationist viewpoint. It’s a collective task for equals amongst Equals. Jesse and I Paul are still in Charge of this Calling - no one and nobody else here, there, or anywhere has anything to say or do about it. Get that straight Now, and “Forever Now!” “We” “speak” for the LIGHT.

Who do you speak for? Or does “self” do all your speaking? You stick with “US” and “WE” will show you the Light of Another day in a New World!

Now before getting all the way back to the Sky-Peoples, let me tell you this concerning Wolf Tails Pass. Our Brothers “T” and “DL” and our Sisters “GT” and “BN” will be our Ambassadors on that particular mission and they will be joined by my Partners J. Allen Dale, Jr., and F. LeDuc. They will be in charge of the mission and they, and theirs, will finance it. The Doctor, “Ja,” will call it together and then “we” all meet at a special Gathering in Virginia Beach where the Spirit Guide, the Executive Secretary, the Family Mystic, and the Order of Thirteen will be, at a Table Fellowship along with the Mystic Advisors, which are multiple. They will introduce themselves and I Paul, believes you will all be surprised.

Now, finally getting back to our Sky-People (the Lumerians) and the reason why “Wolf-Tails Pass” is so important to us, we the True Christian Spiritualists, it is there, in Colorada, that we shall establish the Truth of the Pawnee Creation Story and the Falsity of the biblical creation myth.

Now if that doesn't do it to the religionists then we will simply turn to another proof, and, if need be, another. After all, we hold the trump hand on Atlantis, and the Great Temple.

Now, all the Pawnee Families carried and held dear what they called “bundles.” What were these so-called “bundles?” Well, we could say, that Judas Iscariot carried the “bundle” for Jesus, the man of Nazareth. Only the most trusted down through the Ages carried the “bundle!” Peter, for instance, never carried a bundle - James, the brother of Jesus did, and so did I Paul, among others of us, we, the True Christian Spiritualists.

Of course, when the Pawnee became religionized, when "Mana" and the "Totem" became their particular brand of magic, the "bundle" became only a token of what it once was. But that's the way it has been, long before the Pawnee, starting, we presume, with the Sumerians, who should have known better, but, obviously, did not.

Now that you all finally know what I am, a Lumerian, as opposed to an American, you should also know exactly who I am in Relationship to the Family; to the Message; and to the Order of Thirteen; and so forth. I Paul am the Mystic of the Message of I Paul. And that's all I am. The Message of I Paul then is my "bundle," the one I Paul, carry constantly. I Paul, Respect my "bundle" regardless of its Yoke or its burden, or the very lack of them. It matters not.

The Bird People or, if you wish, the Sky-People, those who came then from "Outer Space" gave us, in time, as we became "US," our "bundles" - or, in other words, they brought the first "bundles" here, here to W-303, for the Vessel Peoples' use.

There is an interesting, as well as, a very startling

Pawnee story concerning these so-called “bundles.” To begin with, the Pawnee say that the People from the Sky gave them their bundles - to be exact, they say the Sky-People left their “bundles” behind after establishing their tribe or their race, for their use.

The Pawnee story goes along the lines of why they lost immortality. The Pawnee story says they lost immortality because “the People” whom Lightning brought to earth in, or with a “bundle,” killed Lobo, or a “wolf,” if you wish. But, as the story goes, those aboard “Lightning” remained, or retained, their immortality - a fact the Pawnee felt was an injustice (of course, the answer to this lies at Wolf Tails Pass).

Now comes the very strange part of this Pawnee story. They, their Priests, as they did once call them, took a “body” from “Lightning” and, as the description goes, “mummified it!” Yes, you’re hearing correctly, and we are still talking about an American Indian Culture and not the Egyptians.

Now allow me to give you the details of this process, this ritual, or this, if you like, ceremony. The Pawnee “Priests” gathered from all the clans or tribes along with the “the healers” or “Shaman.” They took the body from

“Lightning” and the first thing they did was to rub it, and into it, buffalo fat that had been warmed, and mixed with salt (and, of course, it is here that I Paul and the American Indian Historians part company - it simply is impossible to grasp a bolt of Lightning and then hold onto it long enough to rub buffalo fat and salt into it - ouch!)

After that, the story tells us, they liberally plastered “his body” with a mixture of “Red Clay and Fat!” “His body” is the second clue that rules out “lightning” as only a bolt from the sky! We are, here, dealing with a personality, or at least the Vessel, the Sheath of One!

The Pawnee story goes on to tell us that this “Plastering” made “him happy again!” Now, what in hell could that mean? Made who or what happy? Well, as the story goes “he” then told them to gather “sweet grass” and place it in the South-West corner of the Lodge and to place some in “Lightning!” Now I’m smart enough to know what “Lodge” means and I’m pretty sure I know what “Lightning” indicates, but I’m not really clear yet on what that “sweet grass” really means! And that “he” told them it was a bit disconcerting at that time - I’m sure. “He,” rubbed with buffalo fat and salt, then Plastered with Red Clay and fat and, then, asks for “sweet grass,” well believe me, I thought he was carrying one hell of a “bundle!” But to my surprise, when I finally got corrected, I saw the Light.

And so did those Ancient Pawnee. For “he” who came out of “Lightning,” now bathed in buffalo fat and red clay and who had asked for the sweet grass, suddenly sat up, turned around, and smoke began to rise from the sweet grass placed in the Lodge and in “Lightning!” A “Shaman” then did a remarkable thing for a Shaman - he tore off his robe, his vesture, and bathed it in the smoke and then placed it upon “him” covered in the red clay! (For those of you who have diligently perused the Message of I Paul, you will understand “Red Clay”). A dam shame if you don’t! After all, here, somebody had to be first, regardless of whether it was in the morn or the eve!

The sun sets, the sun rises, we say. Not so, actually. The sun doesn’t move - we do - we had better! And the sooner the better. And the Way out lies in “Lightning.”

This very remarkable story ends with the statement, “thus these children of the cloud-beings, here, must learn what they should do in a future World,” there!

So, what came out of “Lightning” had to return to it and find out on their own! Yes, the Pawnee, at one time knew something about immortality, and yes, they also knew something about Lightning! And now it’s our turn. To belabor an old cliché, yes “Lightning” does strike in the same place twice - and it’s still there. And the Family of LIFE and LIGHT of the All in ALL is going to show the world what Spiritualism is all about and what religion truly is - a Lie! Not to mention what we will do with the Earth’s Sciences. Chaos is a mild estimation. What desperately Needs be understood, that is clearly Understandable, is the fact that Truth and Tradition are unrelated. One is factual, strictly factual, and the other is purely fictional. One is of God, the other is of men and, yes, women. The Order of Thirteen, the Voice and Conscience of the Family of LIFE and LIGHT of the All in ALL has twenty-six tongues, seventeen of those tongues belong to the Virginia Beach and Waquoit-Falmouth branches. Some of these tongues are out of control, “out of control” because they operate without the benefits of the minds. They operate cranial, not spiritually, they operate out of ignorance, out of fear, out of rejection, out of “self.” The problem, is of course, that the tongue manipulators have forgotten, or have not learned to Listen!

You see, only God is the Avenger of Evil and God doesn’t avenge what you conceive or perceive as Evil. The fools always confuse the Wise, the Wise of course being the real Fools. So, God is the Avenger of Evil, not of Nature or of that which Acts Natural. For to “Act Natural” is to Praise and Worship and Love God, which is a “bundle” within its own right, and to “see” the LIGHT and Its Light, and to follow that mind which is in us - the Divine Consciousness of Christ! If, then, you cannot, or, are unwilling to speak from this “mind” which is in you, then Listen Diligently, until you are capable of allowing the Divine Consciousness to speak through you and utilize your tongue for the Very Well-Being of All in ALL. Until that great moment befalls you, stop! Cease! Resist! Your tongue wagging which is idiotic!

Tongues we have in Abundance - minds seem to be alluding us. As a “movement” we will not survive by the tongue alone. And, they could bury us all.

As a “movement” we need the minds, all of them, to pull off the biggest “Coming Out” since the man, Jesus of Nazareth, came out!

So, what are we to say in Concluding “Signs and Symbols?”

First, let me say, that we will attach and make a part of this Communication to the Order of Thirteen and all that that Order of Thirteen consists of, some charts, maps, and so forth for your further edification.

Second, within this Communication, we invoke the Law of “excluded middle!”

Third, the “Whole” of the Order of Thirteen is a Fellowship and a Friendship of Access.

Fourth, the Responsibility of the Order of Thirteen is, and to, the Family of LIFE and LIGHT of the All in ALL - “that Happening.”

Fifth, the Order will do nothing without the express spoken or written license of the Spirit Guide of the Order of Thirteen.

Sixth, the Mystic of the Message of I Paul always has the last word on the discernment, and, of, all interpretations of the Message of I Paul. He, or she, whatever the case may be, always has the last word on exactly what the Message of I Paul has to say to its tyros and to its adherents.

Seventh, the Order of Thirteen needs be assembled in One Place, that One Place already having been established, i.e., where its Spirit Guide IS. Until that is satisfactorily attended to, the Order of Thirteen, will not and cannot function as an Order.

Eighth, the Order of Thirteen, in the absence of its Spirit Guide, which will be a common occurrence, will look toward and follow its Executive Secretary, who, of course, is following the Order's Spirit Guide, who in turn IS following, and, in Partnership, with the Mystic of the Message of I Paul - He, then, Who is "The Message" and a follower of "the Mind of Christ." Be One Yourself!

Ninth, if you Now belong to anything or any organization outside of the Family or the Order, get out of it - put it behind you. And you all will register to vote, and hopefully that registration will be as an Independent!

Tenth, Courage is the Key here. Let me personally explain what I Paul, means by this: When I am weak I am strong - yea, I fake sometimes my strength - and why not - it's not mine anyway - it's spirit strength that comes through, bypasses actually, my weaknesses and makes me strong even, when, I am weak and do not want to be strong - my determination is true - my Need is true - my desire is to Do the good, the right, the true, is strong, but I'm weak otherwise. Oh, I want to do it but I can't, because I'm weak. I won't because I feel I might get hurt. I'm weak, even fearful, maybe; confused, hesitant, perhaps rationalizing - I need to do the good, the right, and the true but I do not want to - all the time. Anyway, I'm rationalizing - I need to do it but don't want to do it - damn it, leave me alone. I'm weak, too weak, so weak that my strength is totally sapped

- I'm down and I can't get up - and it is then, I CRY OUT - and my Cry is heard because, unknowingly, I have been strong up to now and I have diligently and in All Faith and much Love followed my Christ, but, now, now, I'm just too weak to go on, and, bingo! Christ Comes and gives me his strength - his power - and in my weakness he renders me strong by his concern for me and by his Love and his unboundable Energy, and by, and for, and through the Wisdom of the LIGHT, I do it - or should I say it Does it to me and mine?

Eleventh, whatever you Do and wherever you Go - Please, for your sake and mine, Keep the Watch!

Twelfth, Carry your own "bundle." Be Responsible, that's the one thing we True Christian Spirituals cannot, and must never fake. Accept the pleasures of the Vessel Life where you find them and they congenial and acceptable to all that is Good, Right, and True. Seize nothing, Force nothing, Let it Happen and if, by that Happening, you feel condescending too, Join in. Otherwise, hold your voice and swallow your tongue! Your Judgement, Moral, Ethical, or Sick, is not Welcome here, any more than There! Listen!

Thirteenth - Here, we wrap it up. If you haven't figured it out by now, "Lightning," is, of course, a "spaceship." On its “second trip” here, it ran into difficulty, and has remained here ever since. It, and its bundles, remain intact. It is not a “dead” ship in the sense of our terminology. It is alive, even though it is engulfed in red earth, seventy feet, one and three-quarters of an inch, approximately, beneath the “surface” of our Earth, at the site, later designated herein. And since its operators are said to be immortal we should discover Life, in one Form and Structure, therein. We shall See! I say we shall see because the most ancient texts seem to suggest that the likes of a Pragapati, Osiris, and Christ all died, and many, if not cremated like Buddha (and it is said his ashes were preserved under stupas) were subjected to the act of mummification.

The Creation Story recounts how Pragapati created everything. After that it says he became relaxed, or as the proper translation states, “he fell to pieces.” He then had to be reconstituted, so that he “stood upright,” with his body entire and complete. It is extremely difficult to make any sense out of these stories in this day and age and I concede that fact to one and all. The story relates that by this “standing upright” he acquired immortality; his “body” became incorruptible and his mind unchallengeable. This appears to conform to the pure Egyptian account of the Reconstitution of Osiris. Remember that Reconstitution has a quite different meaning than does Resurrection. One deals with Form and Structure, the other does not, for with Resurrection you are supposedly raised exactly as you went down, without any Changes then! O Lazarus, wherefore art thou? If Jesus raised him from the dead, pray tell me, and pray tell the world - who killed him again? And if Lazarus lives, why does he hide from us? Or is he again asleep? Simply asleep. And what of those aboard "Lightning?" Are they too asleep? Or are they Awake and it is we who are asleep? From the most ancient writings I Paul, can make the case, and intelligently so, either way. In fact, the Book of the Two Ways actually does that, and it does so with a very sound and profound reason. Think this out. If there is such a thing as mortality, and if there is such a thing as immortality, then regardless of how you divide them, one must be death and the other must be Life. How else could you view their differences? Isn't the difference between being "mortal" and "immortal" a simple matter of between two States, Death and Life? After all, "mortal," from "mortis," is that which eventually must die. The Message goes a little deeper by stating that the very day you are born is the very day you begin the process of dying. And, of course, immortality simply means "undying," or to last forever. And that's a psychologically soothing thought - to last forever, I mean. But more importantly, it is also a Spiritual Truth, and no religion on the face of this Spaceship, Earth, W-303, can honestly make that declaration. We happily give to the religionists their trust in a General Resurrection at some future time or day, just as we give them their belief in a Second Coming. That has already “happened” if you believe the gospels to be the inerrant word of God, of a star, fixed, not planetary - that, then, which does not err, inerrantem, then! After all, the God Damned Church has been wrong before, or should I Paul say, quite honestly, still! Catholic or Protestant! Or any religion for that matter. And the same goes for their theology and their Idiotology. So be it.

But my task is not to fight against the multiples and multitudes of religion - my task is to Restore Spiritualism back into its August and Proper Place, here on West-303. And the Message of I Paul is my Vehicle, Christ my Hope and Inspiration, and God my Goal and my Love. May it be So! Soulless I Paul, may be, but not hopeless or helpless. Lumerians are really like that.

Were the Ancient Kings of India also Lumerians? We have discovered one account of the consecration of one of these Ancient Kings. Whether he was a Cosmos-Planetary or a Vessel-Physical man is beyond my comprehension. I Paul, will simply relate the story and allow you Practicing Spirit Guides to make up your own minds.

The consecration of this early king in India is based, like the rest of the ceremonials on the Creation Story of that particular culture. What is unique with this story is not its rituals but that the platform it was enacted from was the inverted and intertwined triangles and that the platform was overshadowed by a gigantic Falcon grasping in its talons bolts of Lightning from which burst the numerals 303 in all directions! As significant as all this is, the rest of the ceremonial doesn't appear to make a hell of a lot of sense. You decide.

This whole ceremonial is one in which the king makes himself immortal - a lesson to his subjects for their emulation. So, in this sense, the ceremony itself is less ritual and more along the lines of a Teaching.

What the King and the ceremonial do here is not only to make the king immortal but to make him a god! Shades of Ezekiel! Thou shall not be buried with them in burial for you are now divine! And, as this "divine," the king did a very remarkable thing. He called upon the Sky-People to come and get him, to take him home. They did not come.

So, then rejected, he submitted to the ritual and the ceremony. It went like this: He was Robed, Vestured, then

(now he should have asked someone to come and get him, at least he was Prepared to Go). Once Robed they intoned the Great Falcon's Law, i.e., "Everything that goes down, goes up, and Everything that enters in, exits!"

The consecration ceremony is not only long but complicated (I will give it to you as briefly as possible). The padrino was called upon - in Sanskrit the Sufi was invoked to call forth its grace. Even Pragapati was called upon to Light the great fire altar (all of these invocations took hours). Following this the Full Law of "Formative Causation" was read and the king compelled to embrace it. Here I give you the Language of that Law in our language as best as I can translate it for you: "How little do we know of ourselves! How unjust we are to ourselves! We study everything else but the Divine Consciousness within our own persons. The Truth may be on our lips; but in how few Hearts does it live! We need a new Revelation - not of heaven or of hell - but of the Spirit within Ourselves. We can name and we can think of God because in our inmost substance, form and structure we are of, and are gods."

Once, having embraced this Great Law of Changing Opposites, the king speaks to his Consecrators thusly: "Bring forth my queen" and then awaiting her presence on the platform he continues his speech, "The Highest Creator and all divine things, in so far as they are manifested to us, are known only by Participation therein! The only names of LIFE allowed from this day forward are - Goodness, Truth, Love, Reason, Justice, Peace. From this day forward, in our time, only these names may be given to the Ambassador of the Kingdom of LIFE - Power, Wisdom, Faith, Hope, Loving, Freedom, Unity, and Messenger.”

Then the king relaxes his edict, by stating thusly: “The Great Creator, LIFE itself, may, symbolically or metaphorically can, in this kingdom, be called truth, goodness, essence, Light, justice, sun, star, universe, water, fire, breath, lion, Spirit, etc. But in reality, he is exalted above all these predicates, since each of them has an opposite, while in LIFE there is no opposition.” The king now was joined on the platform (the Fire Altar) by the queen. The king presents her to the consecrators and she speaks thusly: “My Partner,” (she does not say “my king” or “my husband”) “If you will be blind to sense and see with the mind, so shall I. If you will turn from the flesh and waken the eye of the spirit, the inner eye then, so shall I. Thus, and thus only, shall we be One!”

What happened to this Power and this Wisdom of the Female? This “she” who will lead “us” to the New Worlds!

Then this queen made a quite startling statement - “thoth,” (and this is strictly Egyptian) “My cousin, is the god of all writing, Yea the scribe of the Sky-People, the scribe of LIFE even! And the god of all letters, written, spoken or otherwise - especially of that arcane and that sent. He wrote and sent to me my bundle! It came out of Lightning! It came with the roar of Thor” (this, too, is not Indian, it is Egyptian and also Sumerian, and it translates into English from the Sumerian as “big bang” or in the Egyptian as “thunder”). How such a conversation got or found its way into Pragapati’s realm is beyond my comprehension. In truth, I don’t need to comprehend it, my task is to relate to you the story as received, you do the comprehending! And shall I wish you “good-luck?”

Now the queen leaves the platform and with her, all other females in the gathering of consecration leave (no, I Paul, doesn’t know why they left or where the hell they went, so don’t ask me).

The ceremony of consecration of the king continues thusly:

The Chief Consecrator approaches the king and hands him his “bundle.” The king accepts it and from it takes out and reads these passages - “Māb is my sword. Pragapati my source. Vishnu my trial. Buddha my Judge. LIGHT my Prophet. He, the Supreme Spirit my salvation.” Now comes the most startling statement of all, out of the mouth of an Indian king - “Listen! Isis and Horus stood near Rārē as the young god drove his sword into Set, at a place called She-nu-Āha, which in translation means “Lake of Battle” or “She-neter” which translates into “Lake of LIFE!”

Now that is pure Egyptian - what in the world was going on there, in India? Could this very ancient king of India be an Egyptian? Or was he simply handed an Egyptian “bundle,” and if so, why, and how did it get there?

Well, anyway, going on, the king finishing his reading, turns to the Great Falcon and places his “bundle” at its base, then turns and nods to the Chief Consecrator who, in turn, joins the king on the platform and asks permission, for the first time, to speak. Permission being granted, he speaks thusly: “Bring forth the queen, she the “mana” of this kingdom!” She, the “mana,” came forth. She took her place at the higher apex of the Inverted Triangles of the platform as the king stood at the Lower Apex of same. The Chief Consecrator then moved to the Center, an equal distance from both king and queen. He, then, the Chief Consecrator, spoke thusly: “Who amongst us is wise enough to grasp the four winds in their fists? Who amongst us has had the experience of sailing the seven seas of the Kosmos? Who amongst us is capable of counselling the LIGHT? Nay, none of us! Let us, then, Rejoice! I, therefore, Consecrate, that which stands in the North and that which stands in the West. This authority comes from the East and the South. The “Thunder” and the “Lightning,” respectively. You, queen, place thy manas in us all. You, king, protect them! Devote thy minds to the Service of the most High and harmonize thy higher emotions with the Inner Self, then, O Spirit, thou shall be liberated from the existence below, and be United in Peace with LIFE, the All in ALL.”

The king and queen then strode to the center of the platform and were embraced by the Chief Consecrator and each received a sacred kiss from him. Then the Chief Consecrator walked to the base of the Great Falcon Fire Altar and retrieved the King’s “Bundle” and having done so went and entered Lightning and departed.

End of story.

Well, there you have it, most of what I know about Signs and Symbols.

The rest lies in the “Bundle” of “Lightning.” Soon you will have it.

To you, the Order of Thirteen, I Paul, have not been silent. You do, though, have your work cut out for you. Yet, none of us were promised an easy road, and it's time we all faced up to that fact. When you all just "Act Natural" and learn to mind your own business and leave matters that do not matter alone, and leave other people's business alone and keep your noses out of where they do not belong and cease judging others we may, we just might, get Somewhere!

Personally, I don't give a damn what your morals are. What I care about is You and the ethics of that You. If they are correct then you have nothing to fear. And no one to face, or to answer to, except the LIGHT, your personal introduction to LIFE!

Why some of you cannot live and let live is beyond my comprehension. Some of you are so God Damned busy minding other People's business, your own has gone to hell. Shame on you, you have earned it! Haven't you?

The cure, of course, for all this mis-spent energy is to find yourself a true Creative Outlet. A Productive Creative Outlet, something Fruitful. You find it, rather than your Spirit Guide assign it! But, if push comes to shove, that is exactly what he is going to Do! And just guess what I Paul, may do!

Now, as to here before mentioned, I will attach to this Communication some charts, maps, and explanations. That's where the "Symbols & Signs..." come from.

In all good Conscience and with much Love and Trust, for Hope, Unity and Happiness and Peace, and, of course, for your Very Well-Being, I Paul, remain your brother and Servant.

Signs and Symbols – Attachment + - A

Since we have established the 7 points central to man-woman it would be wise to list them here so when they “show-up” in some of our charts, etc., you will not become too overly confused.

These Seven (7) points are as follows:

Mind

Wind (breath)

Fire

Water

darkness

Light

Spirit

These points are important because they differentiate the differences between the macrocosm and the microcosm, and those areas where they interwind, or at least, mingle.

Of course, there are also seven (7) points of the Vessel-Physical man which are unique unto them: Brain, Blood, Bone, muscle, tissue, nerves, and minerals.

The Communication "Symbols and Signs and Other Related Matters pertaining to and in Relationship to the Etheric, the Astral, the Planetary, and Physical Planes and the Bodies Relevant to them, including the Purely Psychological" is most important to the Order of Thirteen, because it will set the Order of Thirteen Free to do what it is called to do. And this Calling is not of man, not of women, but of Spirit, and, therefore, cannot be ignored. Must Not be ignored if we are to insure our Well-Being!

And let us speak towards this Well-Being. Appearance, yours that is, is of the most utmost importance. You look silly, most people on the face of this Earth are going to Label you as Silly - and, as silly, you are going Nowhere. Clean up your Act, clean up your looks, clean up your overall appearance! Is this meddling? No, it's Common Sense. You want to lead, then look like a Leader! Let your "Coming Out" be an example to One and All. Come-out - Come Up!

How would you present yourself to the Supreme Spirit, if granted an interview? Like a slob? I don't Think So. Then why would you go to table with your very own Sisters and Brothers, and Yea, Partners, looking the slob. Is that not an insult?

You see, the August Order of Thirteen, is just that, those who command Awe. Some of you cannot even command my attention. I think that needs be corrected. And such correction can only come from "Understanding" and "Self-Discipline." To Be and Equal amongst Equals means exactly that! An Equal amongst Equals in every way, in every form, in every structure, and in your appearance, that is, equal to all of the Equals! Now, of course, this is not mandatory! You can always leave. You do, have, at least, that Freedom. You want to run with the ragged wolf-pack, do so, be my guest, but if you want to be in The Order of Thirteen, then, by God, you will conform to its tenets. If you wish to be an "A," then, goddam it, be one!

There is a time and place for everything. Think that out carefully, cautious, even, I might say.

You, as an individual, as a collective body, the Order of Thirteen, then, Need be Ahead of all individuals and all collective bodies. You must, simply by your very own presence, Command Respect. And I Paul, will tell you straight out, if you cannot Command my Respect, you are a failure! And the Order, yes, as well as the Family has no place for failures in a Leadership Role! I Paul, will personally embrace all the failures on W-303, but I Paul, will never turn such loose to lead others. You take a good, long look, at those I Paul, have hung onto and maybe, just maybe, you will come to an understanding of just what the hell it is I'm really talking about herein!

Most of you really don't know what the hell it means to love someone, to need someone, to want someone, to trust someone (even foolishly), to be loyal to someone (and to rely on the Ordinance of Reciprocity), and to simply give away your whole existence to someone. Try it, goddam it, you just might like it! You might even come to love yourself!

Now, I Paul, realize that this is hard hitting - I prefer to call it "Tough Love" - You call it whatever the hell you wish to call it. But, if you can't take it, get the hell and gone out of here - and do it Now, because I'm not going to tell idiots the Secrets of the Kingdom! And I Paul, am certainly not going to deal with what I consider slobs. If, we are, and we Are, going to address the multiplicities of this Earth, then we are going to do so as Perfect Ladies and Gentlemen! And more importantly as True Christian Spiritualists - the Spirit Guide, Mystic, Ambassador, Servant Slaves of the LIGHT - Yea, of the LIGHT! Think of that. Yea, think about that!

If that doesn't drive you out of "self," then nothing I can say, can do it. Except maybe one thing. Where in the hell do you really believe you are going, knowing full well what in the hell you are doing, or not doing? Who are you really kidding, or who in the hell are you trying desperately to impress! Zero plus Zero is still Zero, or at least it was when this old mystic went to school.

God forbid, I bite my tongue; but what, just what, would you end up as where, in other words, if you were to drop dead today? You should think about that - or at least "Keep the Watch"! The Master, and yes, he is my master, said once, as an aside, my God is not the God of the dead but of the Living!

Now ask yourself, honestly, sincerely, are you of the Living?

The short time I Paul, have left to spend with you all, I would like to spend it most perfectly - I Paul, will do my part to make that so - what will you do? Will you waste my time with you? Will you waste your own? Or will you simply ignore it all, and go on with matters that really do not matter? O my dearest Sisters and Brothers can't you hear me crying out to you, crying out for you? Don't let me go out broken hearted - don't let me leave a failure - don't let me go, unknown! Look, I Paul, have tried. I have exerted the effort. Not for "me," but always for "you." Yea, I Love you. But more importantly God loves you, even when you are unloving - the Love of Spirit is, you see, an undying Love, an Eternal Love, an Energy beyond your, my, our, comprehension! I Paul, try, desperately, to Love like that. I Paul, is not a fool for trying, even though he misses the mark, for there is, something, to be said about this great love, and Great it is, and that something is "Something"! Find it, hold on to it, embrace it, then, never let it go. It will never let you go or forsake you! You are never Alone.

I Paul, may have Stoic tendencies, but I am first and foremost a Christian Spiritualist. So, forgive me for my inherent Stoicism, seek out the little good I do have - it might surprise you "someday." It has me.

Now that I Paul, have gotten all of that business, matters that Do matter, off my conscience, let us go on with the differentiations between the microcosm and the macrocosm, between the Earths and the Kosmos, between fixed places and those flexible and Lucid, as well as Fluid.

The Four Earths are Fluid. The Four Earths are flexible. They could not, of course, come together otherwise, in the Future. Lucidity is the Key here! Don't you realize, that with "transcendent lucidity" you can visit all the 303's? With lucidity you can BE your True-Self any damn time you want to! The House of Wisdom is yours for the effort, not for the asking, or the begging! I know, I Paul, has been there safely and back five times. My seventh journey will be last, that is, my last, transcendence.

What am I Paul, to say to an Order that simply won't Order itself. Should I Paul, wish you good-luck? I think not. I Paul, truly thinks though, that if our Spirit Guide does not cut out the dead heads, I Paul, will leave few "living"! And, if you invite Jesse in, I Paul, and our Spirit Guide, our Executive Secretary, and a few others will be all that remains. The rest will, quite seriously, be "viewed" as remains!

And that, my dear Sisters and Brothers, is what "Tough Love" is all about! It's a Promise, not a threat.

The Spirit of the Message assigned to each member or Associate of The Order of Thirteen a task and a designation. Some of these have been rejected, and, therefore, those who have rejected their designations and their task, have in turn been rejected. Rejected because they have rejected outright their inherent Responsibilities to Spirit, to the Message, to the Family, and to the Order, and worse, to their Sisters and their Brothers.

Realistically, you of the Order haven't lost anything, those ejected from the Order of Thirteen, are the losers. They are still your Sister and your Brother. It is the Mystic of the Message and the Spirit Guide of the Order, who are the real losers here - the Ones who hurt the most but must accept and live with these most recent wounds.

Sooner or Later the Order is going to have to settle down and become an Order, one well established and well ordered. Life for you, must, and will go on. At the moment time is all you've got - some of you have more of it than others - some less, so whatever amount of it you have, spend it well. Don't waste it agonizing over the likes of those who have rejected your Fellowship, your Order.

Now, let us hopefully, put all of those disruptions behind us and get on with the business "at hand."

Here I need to draw you some pictures, illustrations if you please, in order for me to get the points, the information, if you wish, across to you. I Paul, simply want you to look at them and think about them for now. I am going to be teaching "Signs and Symbols, etc." as well as Lesson Thirteen when I am assured "we" have an Order and "we" have put Chaos behind us! We need your support, your cooperation, your utmost dedication - we cannot survive without them.

So, First, let us give the "Lumerian Chart" of their Concept of the Universe.

The Lumerian Chart

And it being their Concept, it automatically becomes mine. Now let us explain this Concept.

If you notice just where the west has been placed in that order concerning the East, the North, the South and the West you could be on your Way to Understanding the truth about the 303's! I should also draw your attention to the fact that the North, as the West, are inside, while the East and the South, are not.

Now Looking at that conceptual diagram, allow me to explain some of its Symbols, its Signs.

Let us begin with "Mega."

Mega = Great - The Symbol of the water of, or the "River of LIFE." Mega, then, is the Sign of One over Eighty-Nine, or the Signature Sign of Seven. The autograph of the LIGHT, then.

Within the elongated inverted triangles in the Upper Left side is an "MA," a Sign, or Symbol, if you like. It, "MA," stands for Macro Mind. It, is, if you can truly "see," both Inside and Outside - for it is also a "Mega"!

Now opposite of "MA" is "AL." This signifies the "Alpha Mind." And pray tell, just what in the hell do we mean by Alpha Mind? It's actually a Symbol that represents the Higher Self as constituting the spirit process in its travels, in its entirety.

The Master did make the Statement, and I quote him, "I am the Alpha and the Omega, with the Lord God, the EL, which is and which was and which will remain, the Almighty." This explains, to those called and who do answer Yea, the manifesting spirit from the Supreme. It is the incoming as well as the outgoing of the Divine Life, the very Life you hold, even if you reject it, or, simply, ignore it, it does remain, in spite of yourself, the Present, the past, and the Future in, and of, the Eternal Now! Therefore, we can say, in all good Conscience, that the Alpha Mind is the "Controlling Mind." It is the Mind of Change! Can you control Change? No, I think not, simply because everything Changes, everything is always under constant change, with the One Exception, LIFE. Did not even our Christ, the LIGHT, Change? Why then, not you? And I will answer that query for you - you do not have control of the "Controlling, the Alpha Mind."

Now, within the inverted-intertwined triangles, at the lower left is the Symbol "Mi" or "MI." This symbolizes the "Micro Mind."

This "MI" is a symbol of the "little world" you live in, which you, and you only, have created for "your" - "self." That little world which contains all of the matters that do not matter and the world you just love to wallow in.

Opposite to "MI" is "Om." This is the Omega Mind. This is the Way Out! You may have flown in here on the Alpha Mind, that's alright, but you are not getting out of here until you have total Control of the "Om"! This is, then, the Only Way to take everything with you. This is, then, the signature, the "fingerprint," of the compounded lower and higher mind. That, then, you cannot leave behind! It is the "A" and it will, in time be faced with the "O" or, better, the "OM." One could intone the expression of "Aum Tat Sat" which is the threefold designation of the Eternal "Om"; this syllable, is not only Eternal, it also means "ALL," its interpretation is that which has been, that which is, and that which is to be - Is, even! All is "Om," "Om" is all, "Oh My, All, why have I forsaken you for the pleasures of the fool?" (That is, of course an aside, I needed to ask myself that question in public.) Realistically, my heart is in the right place, it's just rather confusing since I Paul, misplaced my "Om."

You see, All is "Om," and only Om, and whatever is beyond horizontal time is Om, and only Om! This syllable "Om" is the higher and the lower self. It is, then, you and You, but it is also much more.

In my teaching of I Paul, Thirty-Three, of Lesson Thirteen, and of "Signs and Symbols, etc.," Om will be given as a Symbol, as a sign, of the Higher Self and its brethren, and especially those of the Lumerian Strain.

You see, the First Self is complete and perfect, but unmanifested; the second "self" is under illusion, is an illusion, then, incomplete and imperfect in its manifestation of itself! The True-Self is actually the One Self and The One is The All, The Om. The "El" if you wish, or the Elohim!

You see, that is what Faith means, the Faith that counts for Righteousness. It is the spirit, yours and mine, with mind turned Upwards, to wards the eternal LIGHT, Now. The spirit of Man-Woman, of Woman-Man listening intensely for what the still small voice of the Supreme Spirit is saying. That's keeping the Faith, and it's also Freedom - that's why it is a Full Measure! You embrace the Mind of Christ, the "Om" then, and the Supreme Spirit engulfs you in its Grace and in its Love. You want to sit on that throne at the right hand of God, then Do it. The only barrier in your way is you. And most of you, my dearest Sisters and Brothers, and I might add, Pretending Partners, simply cannot get out of the way of you!

Now we come to "CA." The Carnal Mind. I'm pretty sure you understand what Light means in the diagram. And I will venture that you think you know what Darkness means in that diagram also.

Are you ready to hear about the Carnal mind? If you have perused the diagram of the Lumerians you would have, then, seen it entrapped between the higher level and the lower level of "Mana"! Damned if it does, and damned if it doesn't, then. So, there must be, there just must be, a way out! Sure, there is. And You own it. And you better Do something, anything, even, with it.

For those who are unfamiliar with the expression "Carnal Mind," those of you who have no grasp of Paul's Epistles, those of you who have ignored I Paul's admonishment to "study your bible a little more diligently." This I Paul will fill you in on, I Paul, after all, would not have you ignorant, even if you insist on being so. And I Paul, am not being facetious, I am simply attempting to be serious, "deadly serious" in fact.

"Carnal," from the Latin Carnalis, from the lost, dead, buried Latin "Caro," is, within all good Conscience, a very bitter, perhaps, a very nasty word, but nevertheless a word. A word laid on us by I Paul and therefore necessary, and yes, even worthy of our total Understanding.

"Caro" is strictly, firstly, a Lumerian term. It means "Flesh," its secondary meaning can be best translated as "corrupt flesh"! And I believe that that's exactly the Way I Paul meant to use the term in his Letters to the Family.

"Carnis," then, is flesh. So, what will we say about the Carnal mind? Let us see!

I Paul, must turn first, of course, to the great letter to the Roman Family of I Paul. I go, of course, to Romans 8:7. And, we need not hold a flashlight!

"Because the Carnal Mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the Law, any Law of God, neither can it ever be" and that, my dearest friends, is exactly how it was originally written.

Do I Paul, need now, to go any further on the Carnal mind? I think not. I Paul, simply beg, that you all, with one mind and with one mouth glorify LIFE, and Yes, the LIGHT! You follow after the Spirit - you will not have time to chase after or follow the flesh; follow "after" the flesh is what I mean here. Propagation is still a very cardinal rule here on W-303 - don't stand in its way - this is, after all, a Family of LIFE. A Family walking, not only after the Spirit, but with it - and, at the same time Acting Natural. And, leaving that, we come to Aura. The twin Auras, actually. I've seen so many of these I Paul, is becoming blind, color blind, that is.

So, what are we to say about Aura?

Well, it's really an attract-ment - it is also an attachment, and it could, very easily, become a liability. Or then, a blessing. This I am not going to explain to you. Your Aura, or lack of it, is strictly your business. I Paul, will keep my "self" strictly out of it! Although, I will tell you one related point about it - the travelers sail by it, and, with it.

Now that we have covered all of the pertinent points of Diagram "A" let me simply add that you could, if you are Thinking, discern that given as follows.

We have Four Earths - the East, the North, the South, and the West. You are only familiar with one of these 303's, the West. And you are only familiar with one specie of man-woman kind. But just as there are four Earths, there are also four related genre of mankind, and therefore four spirit related species also! Surprised? You have, haven't you, for quite some time now believed in such things as guardian angels or just plain angels, as well as spirit guides? None of which are of this Earth. And since not, where in the hell did you Think they came from? Or, better yet, come from. My dear Sisters and Brothers, if you cannot at least discern that, "we" are going nowhere. In the not, so least distant past, I couldn't discern it, but having become an ardent student of the Message of I Paul, hell I can discern anything anyone throws at me, even Angels or Guardians or Spirit Guides. And I have absolutely no problem in making that statement.

The trouble, if I Paul, may call it that, is attempting to make the same declaration for those who inhabit West-303. Guardian Angels All, but they don't know it. And most could care less, yes most are careless! I could also make the case, that most, are, also, thoughtless!

Signs and Symbols - Attachment + - B

Now to Symbols + - "B". And here again we must begin with a Diagram. And what we are up to here, is to establish the Supremacy of W-303, no easy task! Even on paper it is no easy task. We are going to do what we have been called upon to do. How we are going to do it, I Paul, am not sure; it screams out for intelligence; it begs reasoning! It compels logic. It also demands my Presence! It has, also, demanded the Presence of others. They, some, unilaterally, have decided not to be Present. That is, of course, not only their right, but their Choice. It is the Order that suffers, not those who decide, or who have opted to withhold their Presence from it. Yes, the Order suffers, but so will those who have relegated it from its Primary Place to second fiddle in their Life. I Paul, have been paying rent in strange places. No more, no more my friends. I Paul will no longer be taken as the fool, the soft touch, or as Mister Compassion. I simply do not have the time for idiots, Spiritual Idiots, that is. What the hell you do with your Physical Life is of no concern to me - as long as you do not involve my Physical Existence, nor endanger my Spiritual Life! You cross those lines at your own Peril. All I can really say about such a crossover is that you had better Keep the Watch!

You see, I just want to make sense, I cringe, I Paul, bleeds when he watches some of you blatantly destroy your own Well-Being and then, atrociously turn around, and attempt to justify your ignorance with lame and sick excuses, with oddball opinions, and with a distorted sense of Common Sense. As, I Paul, have already said, I do not care about, I am not evenly remotely concerned about your morals - in fact, I could care less! You, all of you, actually know just what it is I Paul, am really concerned about. Yes, I Paul, am quite concerned about your Well-Being. But I Paul, am also quite concerned about your outlook and your input, your Responsibility, then to ward it.

Now I have gathered scattered strangers, I have brought you together, I have tried to keep you together - and not one of you has tried to emulate those Actions. You have been to God Damned busy serving "self." Too God Damned busy preserving your Ass! And from what, I do not know.

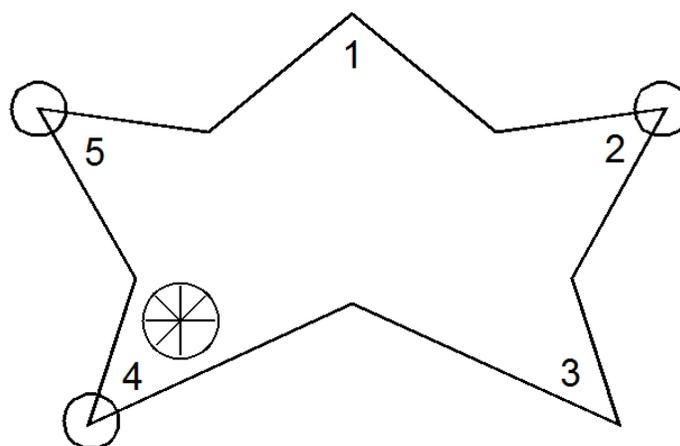

Now, and I Paul, do not relish the fact, that I have to now scatter a few, who, to me at least, are no longer strangers. And if you believe or have even the most remote thought that I have favorites, then you have better disabuse yourself of that wrong thought.

Now that I have gotten all of that stuff off my mind, I Paul, will go on and attempt to use his minds for what they were gifted for in the first place. And I Paul, promise you from this place in time and space I will never again write in anger nor shall I ever put anyone of you down or have any derogatory thing to say about any of you - I'll leave all of that to the Powers that be. From this day forward, if you like, you can call me Mister Nice! Or, if it suits you better, just call me Paul. Better yet - don't call me, I'll call you. So be it!

We give you here two Diagrams. We will, of course, explain their meanings for your edification.

The Pentagram. And the Original Five Points pertaining and contained in its meaning. It is, as you should notice, a fractured star. It has five "Needles."

The Pentagram

It is "the symbol" that represents what we cite nowadays as a "Black-Hole" in Space. Actually, it is the Vertical Clock. Its "horizontal time" opposite is the Great Temple. Both are geared to the North Star. It's the navigational chart of "the Travelers." What is of great importance to us is the fact that it is the exact shape of "Lightning."

The five "needles" numbered one through five are (1) water; (2) wind; (3) fire; (4) moons; (5) suns. The complete explanation of these five "needles" is in CPM #32. It is not of any great importance, at the moment, to any of you - you are not yet "Travelers." Perhaps, when we retrieve the "bundle" from "Lightning" you just might then need to know - and with "Lightning's bundle," you will. So why worry? Well, there is still the problem of Following the Directions exactly as given, and, of course, the necessity of Understanding what those directions are. It does take an Adept Discerner to come to that Understanding. You have two such. Yet, you have, fortunately, more than two, so "gifted"! Find, seek them out.

And, please, allow me an aside here - it's an aside I must make. Don't ever forget what it is you don't ever want to Remember! Yes, you my dearest Sisters and Brothers, and Partners and Advisors, God, the Supreme Spirit, LIFE, then, is not finished with you, nor with I. And I might add, LIFE is not finished with the Order of Thirteen either. Already its ranks have been ravaged, and I'm sure that that ravaging is not yet over and done with! Already "JN," "G," and "DP" are gone. Not one of them heard the "voice." Not a one of them bowed to the Lord. Not a one of them paid any heed to the Mystic of the Message of I Paul. I Paul, say to those of you who remain, Listen - Please Listen! I have lost enough, don't make the pain any greater. In fact, I will attempt to ease it.

Now let me get back to "Lightning." It is a power plant, a Power House within itself. Why then did it crash, why then didn't it hit its target, Wolf Tails Pass? The truth is I Paul, does not know and he has not been told. What I Paul, has been told, when we retrieve the "bundle" from "Lightning" we will have all the answers, even the one to "How"!

* WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1988 ****

We now do know where "Lightning" is, how it got there, and why. So, you can ignore some of the above, the "unknowing," that is. We now "Know." Change is in the Wind.

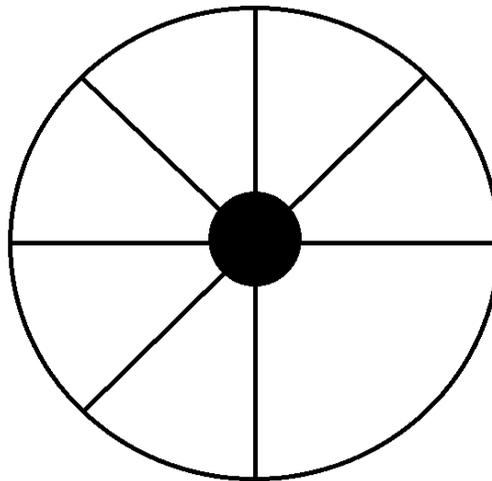

In view of this most recent Revelation, I Paul, am compelled to Review the outcasting; the rejections of "JN," "G," and "DP," then. Of course, none of them can be again Practicing Spirit Guides, Mystics, Ambassadors, Servant Slaves to the Light. Yet, they could, with your nod, be made Associate Advisors to the Mystic of the Message of I Paul, and therefore be equal in status with him.

Therefore, I Paul, asks the Spirit Guide of the Order and the Executive Secretary of the Order of Thirteen to poll the remaining, and active membership of the Order of Thirteen, to express their view on whether I Paul, the Mystic of the Message of I Paul, should or should not embrace such a move, concerning "JN," "G," and "DP." Jesse has voiced no objection nor given any blessing regarding this situation! You are capable of making a decision - let us see one, hear one, and let us see your explanations to all of those involved in, and with, your decision made known to me. Of course, I Paul, also has other Associate Advisors, and I will poll them personally. Together, all of us, will come to a decision. Be fully assured that, I Paul, will respect your decision and weigh it carefully and wisely. I Paul, seeks Unity and Peace. I Paul, seeks a Family, knowing full well, that not all of us are as concerned with this as I Paul, is. God, will we ever get the structure of this Order of Thirteen, in order, so that we can get on with the business of the Family, the Order, and the work of our Christ? We are the recipients of Great News - we are on the verge of a Great Discovery, we must put our Act Together, we must Unite, we must ACT! I'm pleading with you on this. Please, don't drive me down on my knees, and make me beg.

Now, getting back to the business of "Lightning," we Need to Retrieve the Wheel from it. This, the Wheel of the Seven Cardinal Points of Mankinds, as given on Page One of Symbols + - "A." It looks like this illustration:

It is the "bundle" we are going after. Somehow, we are going to get a Message from it. We will tackle that problem once we have it in our possession. And we know it's in "point" or "Apex 4" of "Lightning"! And I know it's 24 inches wide, 7 inches in depth. We also have every reason to believe that these are information discs layered one upon another, and that they will specifically address Mind, Wind (breath), Fire, Water, darkness, Light, and Spirits - among other pertinent realities.

And, most importantly to this Earth is the fallacies of both Creationism and Evolution - both theories, one religionistic, and one scientific, and both wrong insofar as they attribute those "theories" as having their beginnings here on W-303.

Factual as compared to fictional mythology contains more truth than all of the theologies currently in use on this Earth. One of the reasons we raise this point is because the two Primary Causes for all the Hate on this Earth can be traced directly to Religion and Race. One, religion, has a fictional mythology and many theologies and the other, Race, has neither. One, then is "Real," the other false (Orpheus, when leaving Hades, was told by the God not to look back. This mythological tale is again repeated in the bible, cleverly re-written, to depict Lot and his wife fleeing Sodom and Gomorrah). What is remarkable about this, and the only reason I raise it here, is the fact that the story about "placing your hand on the plow and never looking back" can also be traced back to Orpheus - as can the differences between Faiths and Races! It is a small world we reside in at the moment no matter how you view it!

"Lightning" is going to answer many questions for us, and in addition, reveal many things to us. Patience, my dear brothers, sisters, and Partners. Patience!

We now steer you to ward the Secrets of the Minds, "Consciousness of Consciousness" - IV.

Your brother and Servant,

I Paul.

Mystic - The Family.
